IT Update

- Chris Oberlin, the director of District IT, indicated that the District is close to finalizing an agreement with Adobe for a site license for the Adobe Master Suite, which would include using the Adobe products at home. This will be a yearly subscription to use their products rather than licensing of software.
- The three positions for IT managers at the three colleges will be re-advertised. The previous search did not result in any candidates accepting the positions.
- The District is moving to a single help desk system (the one currently being used by GWC) rather than having multiple systems for a variety of issues. It has reporting functions and analytics that will come in handy. It may even be able to replace the M&O system.
- The Computer Refresh Project that has been funded by Measure M will start by replacing computers for full-time faculty. The next step will be replacing computers in classrooms and finally replace staff and administration computers.

The President addressed the subject of the future of Seaport. There is pressure to move to a common Learning Management System (LMS). It has been decided not to employ a consultant to analyze Seaport due to the strong possibility of transitioning to a different LMS in two years. Dave Thompson is preparing a comprehensive Seaport Evaluation Report. It appears more likely than not that we would transition to a new LMS but a final decision will be made after critical dialogues have taken place at the College.

Education Advisory Board – Community College Forum

Membership in this organization will be a great asset. They will do research for the college on any topic requested. It will especially useful for CTE when developing programs. It will make preparing data for getting State approval easier to collect.

Westminster Parking

Christine Nguyen reported that progress is being made to lease parking from the city of Westminster. A short-term agreement has been entered into to provide parking on one floor of the new parking structure to Coastline students and staff. A long term agreement is being worked out. Any events that are planned at the Le Jao Center will be able to use the parking structure at no cost as long as the city is notified in advance.
