The 2010-2011 academic year was a very busy one for the faculty, staff, and students of Coastline Community College. As in the year before, we continued to balance a record demand for classes with harsh budget cuts.

Nonetheless, Coastline was able to preserve many General Education (GE) courses, basic skills classes, and those classes that lead to degrees, certificates, or to a transfer path. These classes are the most crucial in terms of student success as students look to complete their degrees and certificates faster so that they can transfer or so that they can start working.

Now, more than ever before, we’re motivated to find additional resources and establish creative programs that support student success. The push towards greater efficiency has resulted in the start of many new programs at Coastline. During the 2010-2011 academic year, the college was awarded a Title III grant to outreach to minority audiences and engage them in programs that are accelerated and focused on transfer. This grant has allowed Coastline to establish a mentoring program (now known as the “guideU Student-Mentor Connection”), produce materials that outline transfer pathways, and participate in outreach efforts targeted to this group of current and potential students.

Moving into the latter part of the fiscal year, Coastline applied for (and was recently awarded) an “ESL Bridge to Citizenship” grant which will help hundreds of non-native English speakers succeed in our English as a Second Language (ESL) program, pursue their U.S. citizenship, and transition into the general college degree-path programs. This is an effort we should all be very proud of, and I look forward to reporting back to you on the results of this grant in next year’s annual report.

Coastline is also reaching beyond our local community with global programs like “Education Bound United States”, a high school to college program currently offered in China. We are planning to create similar programs in other countries. After all, we’ve become experts in serving students worldwide as we do in our tremendously popular Military program. Coastline’s Military program boasts high retention and success rates, and you will read about it many times in this document.

No matter the economy, the climate, or the year-by-year evolution of the college, our focus remains the same: student success. The success of our students can be defined in different ways. To one student, it may be getting that class that they weren’t able to find anywhere else. To another, it may be graduating with their A.A. degree in less than two years.

It is our honor and privilege to continue to respond to their needs and help them achieve success, and it is my personal honor to serve them and to serve you—our community members—as President of Coastline Community College.

I hope you will enjoy this Annual Report.

Warm regards,

Loretta P. Adrian, Ph.D.
President

On the cover: A Coastline Military Programs student showcases his diploma after a graduation ceremony held on the deck of an aircraft carrier. Coastline’s Military Program educates students via distance learning as they serve our country from around the world.
Unlike most colleges, Coastline does not have a traditional campus. Instead, instruction is offered at sites throughout the Coast Community College District. The College has three main mini-campuses based in Costa Mesa, Garden Grove and Westminster, with an administration building (offering enrollment services, counseling, a bookstore, and more) in Fountain Valley. At Coastline, students can choose to take courses to fulfill their general education transfer requirements, or explore exciting vocational programs like Process Technology, Emergency Management, and Informatics. In addition, Coastline also offers a renowned English as a Second Language (ESL) program and a unique Acquired Brain Injury (ABI) program.

Coastline Community College has an international reputation as one of the nation’s most innovative institutions. Founded in 1976, Coastline is committed to student success through accessible and flexible education within and beyond the traditional classroom. A majority of students take at least one class via the College’s state-of-the-art Distance Learning program, which allows flexible learning via the internet, CD-ROM, Emmy award winning telecourses, and even classes on hand-held PDA.

The college also forms progressive and unique relationships with business and industry. For example, Coastline has combined efforts with the Workforce Investment Board to operate the Orange County One-Stop Centers, which offer employment services for individual job-seekers and for businesses. In addition, Coastline’s Contract Education program includes an extensive program that allows enlisted members of the U.S. Military to easily pursue an education (mainly via Distance Learning) at Coastline.

Coastline is part of the Coast Community College District, which also includes Orange Coast College and Golden West College.

Coastline ranked 52nd in the nation and was the highest ranked community college in Orange County. Coastline awarded 1,890 associate degrees in the 2010/2011 academic year, which includes 1,511 graduates from Coastline’s Military Program. Coastline’s innovation in its Distance Learning has contributed to the flexibility of courses offered to students through: online, independent study, television/cable TV classes, CD-Rom or DVD classes, and even classes via handheld PDA. These options make obtaining an AA degree even more obtainable for a wide range of students.

Coastline one of 50 most popular for active-duty military students

When servicemen and women choose to pursue a degree while serving in the U.S. Military, many receive tuition assistance (TA), and a spring 2011 study conducted by Military Times EDGE ranked Coastline Community College as one of the most popular colleges among students using TA funds. Coastline came in at number eleven on the list of fifty published online at www.militarytimesedge.com, and is one of few public colleges making the list.

Military students can earn their degree entirely via distance learning. Though few service members are able to attend the college’s annual on-campus commencement ceremony each May, military graduates are often recognized at ceremonies held on their respective military bases. In June 2011, Coastline’s President, Dr. Loretta Adrian, attended a commencement held at Little Creek Naval base to honor 165 Coastline graduates in the Norfolk, Virginia, region.

Former student, David Kuskie, was able to complete his associate in arts degree while serving on active duty in the U.S. Navy through Coastline’s distance learning program. After transferring to a four-year university, Kuskie keeps in contact with Coastline via the college’s Facebook page. He wrote, “I liked the flexibility of the program. I was able to combine Navy training and transfer credits from other colleges to obtain my degree with Coastline. The staff was very friendly and helpful. My questions and concerns were addressed promptly and accurately. I also liked the variety of classes available.”

Overall student satisfaction and student success is one of the reasons Coastline continues to be a leading educational provider in the military community and a favorite among active duty, their spouses and dependents, and Veterans.

“We feel honored to support the military education community and are actively involved with many national and local organizations to keep abreast of the ever changing and unique needs of the military community,” said Coastline’s Dean of Military Programs, Joycelyn Groot. The organizations Coastline is involved in include: National Association of Institutions for Military Education Services (NAIMES), the Council of College and Military Educators (CCME), Servicemember Opportunity Colleges (SOC), and U.S. Army Southern California Community Advisory Board.
Besides public funding, Coastline Community College’s efforts are supported by grants and private donations. The following grants were awarded to Coastline during the 2010-2011 fiscal year:

- An AANAPISI Grant was awarded by the U.S. Department of Education on October 1, 2010. The grant will total $2 million over a period of five years. This grant was awarded to Coastline in order to increase the number of Asian American and Pacific Islander (AAPI) students who eventually enroll in degree-applicable courses; increase the number of AAPI students who earn A.A. degrees; and increase the number of AAPI students who transfer to UC or CSU institutions.

- The State Chancellor’s Office of the California Community College system awarded $300,000 in grants to Coastline to fund the Statewide Discipline/Industry Collaborative for Business Education initiative. Coastline will be charged to develop new curriculum and student support measures for Business and Information Technology programs. Coastline also received $38,000 from the State Chancellor’s Office to fund advisory committee meetings and co-sponsor the annual BESAC conference. The Spring 2011 BESAC conference was arranged by Coastline faculty and staff and took place in Sacramento, CA.
