Humanities Program

Executive Summary

The Humanities Program is robust and healthy. Full Time Equivalent Students (FTES) have increased in five years from 218.14 in fall 2004 to 306.37 in fall 2009. Although we don't have statistics for enrollments in contract education, many Humanities online courses are taught in the Military Education Program in each of the five sessions per year. For example, more than 100 military students take English 100 per session, resulting in more than 500 students in that course per year. About 300 military students take Communications 100 each session, resulting in well over 1,000 students taking that course each year. Humanities courses are also taught to high school students on high school campuses in the Credits for College Program and in the Early College High School.

The major changes over the past five years have been in the increased variety of classes scheduled and in the expansion of distance learning classes. Literature classes that had not been scheduled for years now see excellent enrollment as online classes. New literature and communications classes have been developed and are now being taught or are scheduled to be taught in the regular semester and/or in the Military Education Program. A new phenomenon in the College is the recent development of independent-study correspondence courses designed specifically for students in the Incarcerated Student Program, which has grown from 10% to almost 25% of the total Coastline student population in the past five years.

For the most part, students are satisfied with all aspects of the classes they have taken in the Humanities Program. One major complaint, particularly with incarcerated students, is the slow response time of instructors and, particularly of the Distance Learning Department. Another complaint is not getting responses from instructors. A third problem has to do with technical difficulty accessing Coastline servers and using online programs.

The Humanities Program has identified 13 new five-year goals and target dates for completion:

1. Develop and implement a plan for assessing program-level student learning outcomes for the A.A. English major. (Fall 2010)
2. Hire a full-time Student Success Coordinator. (Fall 2010)
3. Hire a full-time English instructor. (Fall 2011)
4. Hire a full-time Communication Studies/Mass Communications instructor. (Fall 2012)
5. Develop and implement an online tutoring service for English Composition students. (Ongoing)
6. Expand Independent Study offerings for students who have no access to the Internet. (Fall 2014)
7. Expand literature offerings by 5 courses. (Fall 2014)
8. Expand writing courses to include Poetry and Screenwriting. (Fall 2014)
9. Establish a reading test as part of the English Placement Test and expand the reading program. (Fall 2012)
10. Encourage faculty to use the Progress Notes feature in Seaport for continuous course improvement. (Ongoing)
11. Create an English Department Web site. (Spring 2011)
12. Create a Philosophy Department Web site. (Spring 2011)
13. Create a Speech Department Web site. (Spring 2011)

Humanities Program

Process

The Humanities Program for 2010 includes five disciplines: Communications, English (including Basic Skills English), Humanities, Philosophy, and Speech.

The Humanities Program Review Team included two deans: Margaret Lovig, the dean in charge of these disciplines for two years (2007-2008 and 2008-2009), and Vinicio Lopez, the new dean hired in September 2009. It also included twelve faculty: seven full-time and five part-time faculty. Student Success Center Director Margaret Hickey represented basic skills English courses. Marilyn Fry, Ken Leighton, Catherine Palmer, Margaret Taylor, and Terry Strauss Thacker represented English. Glenn Harwood and Rachel Wegter represented Speech and Communications. Bob Covert represented Philosophy. Adrian Windsor represented Humanities. Mathematics Professor Lisa Lee and Librarian Cheryl Stewart also served on the Humanities Program Review Team.

About 25 faculty in the disciplines represented by the Humanities Program met for five hours on January 21, 2009, to discuss curriculum and to work on course outline revisions and Student Learning Outcomes (SLOs). The English and Humanities faculty met at one table. The Philosophy faculty met at another table with Ken Leighton. The Speech faculty met in another area. Much work was begun at that meeting. As course outlines were completed, they were then sent to the Curriculum Committee for approval throughout the spring and fall of 2009 with a few being approved in spring 2010. Ken Leighton was particularly helpful in assisting faculty in writing these and putting them on the proper forms. By April 2010, all course outlines in all the disciplines had been revised, and all but one had been approved by the Curriculum Committee at that time. All included appropriate Student Learning Outcomes. These outcomes were evaluated by faculty in all these disciplines by the end of the fall 2009 semester.

The Humanities Program Review Team met again for three hours on May 1, 2009, to discuss questions for faculty and student surveys. Those suggestions were then sent to other faculty in the disciplines and to Program Review Researcher Pat Arlington. Surveys were sent to faculty and students in fall 2009. Results of the surveys were given to Humanities Department Chairs Marilyn Fry and Ken Leighton in March 2010.

The team members kept in touch by e-mail with suggestions and comments throughout the year: May 2009 to April 2010. The team members particularly discussed the five-year goals. On March 10, 2010, Ken Leighton and Marilyn Fry met for more than two hours and read the handwritten comments on 483 student surveys from incarcerated students (who were unable to take the surveys electronically).

Department Chairs Marilyn Fry and Ken Leighton wrote the Program Review Report during the spring 2010 semester and completed it by April 5, 2010. Cheryl Stewart created a PowerPoint presentation to be given to the Program Review Steering Committee on April 12, 2010.

Description

Overview

The Humanities Program consists of five departments: Communications, English (including basic skills English classes), Humanities, Philosophy, and Speech. Courses taught in these departments include most of the methods of delivery: classroom course, telecourse, online course, hybrid classroom and online course, and independent study (correspondence) course.

The Humanities Program has a stable, experienced cadre of faculty, many of whom have been teaching at Coastline for 25 years or more, a few from 1976, when Coastline Community College first opened. Three of the faculty are full-time faculty, and 25-30 are part-time faculty. Two other full-time faculty from other departments also teach in the program. Full-time Business Computing Professor Margaret Taylor also teaches one or two sections of English 103, Business English, every semester and usually one section in the summer session. Full-time Librarian Cheryl Stewart sometimes teaches the one-unit English 108, Library Resources and Research. Until her retirement in June, 2009, full-time Professor Margaret Hickey was the main teacher in the Student Success Center, where most of the Basic Skills English and Mathematics courses were taught. This academic year, 2009-2010, several instructors, some full-time, most part-time, are working part time in the Student Success Center.

Certificate Requirements

There are no certificates in any of the departments in the Humanities Program. However, there is an English major. Also, Humanities courses figure prominently in the Communications Area of Emphasis and the Arts and Humanities Area of Emphasis.

Curriculum Review

Over the past five years, the following courses that had previously been suspended were retired, and other courses that were no longer being taught were suspended and then retired:

English 104	Mastering College Skills
English 106	Concepts, Critical Reading and Reasoning
Humanities 114	Critical Studies in Humanities
Philosophy 112	Survey of Modern Philosophy
Philosophy 117	Introduction to Symbolic Logic
Speech 099	English Speech and Listening Skills for Non-Native Speakers
Speech 103	Introduction to Intercultural Communication
All the Religious Studies courses (105, 106, 110, 130, 140, 140A, 140B, and 180)

English 133, Beginning Fiction Writing, was suspended for several years and then was brought back as English 133, Fiction Writing, which can be taken four times.

Coastline Community College department chairs and faculty have met with colleagues from Orange Coast College and Golden West College to make their courses similar in name and number in the Coast Community College District. Coastline was requested to change its Business English course (English 105) to a different number because students might confuse it with English 105 at OCC, which is a technical writing course. Coastline complied and changed the number to the one suggested by OCC, English 103. Coastline also changed its Children's Literature course from English 177 to English 143 to be in agreement with similar courses at both OCC and GWC.

Coastline's Communications 100, Introduction to Mass Communications, is the same as that course at OCC and GWC. OCC used to call it Communications 100 but several years ago changed it to Mass Communications 100. GWC's course is found in the Journalism Department as Journalism 160. Coastline agreed to change its course to Mass Communications 100, to be like OCC and to change the new Communications 140 and 150 to be Mass Communications courses also. However, now OCC has decided to move its two Mass Communications courses into its Speech Communications Department; the new mass communication numbers have not yet been determined, but 100 cannot be used as it is already established in Speech Communication as Interpersonal Communication. Coastline Speech and Communications faculty have decided that Coastline will not combine the two departments. Therefore, we plan to use Mass Communications as the department name at Coastline. The three speech departments in the District will meet at the District Office on April 16 to determine which name will be used throughout the District. OCC and Coastline will probably both decide to change the name to GWC's Communication Studies.

English 108, Library Resources and Research, will change its name and title to become Library/Information Science 108, Information Competency and Library Research.

Twelve new 3-unit courses have been created during the past five-year period since the last program review in addition to five new one-half-unit courses. In the past, English literature courses rarely were able to generate sufficient enrollment when scheduled in the classroom. However, when those courses were offered as online courses, enrollments were excellent. In the past five years English faculty have created new courses, most of which have been in the class schedule almost every semester along with other online literature courses:

English 136	Business Communications
English 146	Introduction to 20th Century Military Fiction
English 150	American Literature to the Civil War
English 155	American Literature 1865 to Present
English 290	British Literature to 1800
English 295	British Literature after 1800
English 296	Gothic Victorian Literature
English 297	Contemporary Gothic Literature

Other new courses include the following:

Mass Communications 140	Public Relations
Mass Communications 150	Introduction to Radio–TV–Film
Speech 101	Human Communication
Speech 200	Effective Communication (a hybrid public speaking course designed exclusively for Air Force students in the Military Education Program)

In addition, the one-half-unit English 039 has been brought back from suspension and is now numbered English 091 (Basic Reading I). Three additional reading classes have been created: English 092 (Basic Reading II), English 094 (Basic Reading III) and English 095 (Basic Reading IV). For the past two semesters, these classes have been taught in a classroom near the Student Success Center at the Le-Jao Center for eleven hours a week in the fall and spring semesters.

The one-half-unit English 020 (Basic Grammar I) was also brought back from suspension and, along with two new one-half-unit courses, were developed as independent-study courses primarily for incarcerated students: English 021 (College Spelling 1) and English 024 (College Vocabulary 1). Also, English 103 and 135 have been designed to be independent-study classes for this population. English 021, 024, and 103 are being offered this semester. English 020 and 135 will be added next fall.

Many of the previous basic skills English classes have been renumbered with new course numbers since the State does not allow basic skills courses to be repeated.

More dramatic, in the past year, Coastline has developed new majors and areas of emphasis: the English Major, the Arts and Humanities Area of Emphasis, and the Communications Area of Emphasis.

In addition to the creation of new courses is the great increase in the number of courses being taught each semester and in the expansion of courses being taught by distance learning, particularly in the English Department. In spring 2005, the first literature course was being taught online. Before that, literature courses were almost never scheduled because it was almost impossible to get enrollment in these classes. But that first online literature course, English 145 (American Literature: The Short Story), had excellent enrollment, which encouraged that instructor and others to develop literature courses for online delivery. In spring 2010, six online literature courses have good enrollment in addition to an online creative writing class (English 133—Fiction Writing), two sections of online English 099 (Fundamentals of Composition), an online section of Business English (English 103), and one of Business Writing (English 135). All of these courses are also taught online in Coastline's contract education Military Education Program including English 146 (Introduction to 20th Century Military Fiction) along with several sections of English 099, English 100, and English 102 and a section of Humanities 110 and Humanities 130, three sections of Communications 100 and one of Communications 150, and sections of Philosophy 100, 115, and 120. Communications 140 and Philosophy 140 will be added in fall 2010. Although the courses taught in the Military Education Program do not generate Full Time Equivalent Students (FTES), the program brings money into the college.

In spring 2005, in addition to two philosophy telecourses and one cable course, only two sections of Philosophy 115 (Logic and Critical Thinking) were taught online; and the only classroom sections of philosophy courses were the two taught in the Weekend College Program (Philosophy 115 and 120). However, in spring 2010, three online sections of Philosophy 115, two online sections of Philosophy 100 (Introduction to Philosophy), and two online sections of Philosophy 120 (From Ethics to Making Moral Choices) were offered along with the two telecourses and one cable course. Coastline no longer offers a Weekend College Program.

In addition to the Humanities 110 telecourse, we also have had an online section of Humanities 110 for several years along with the same online Humanities 130 class taught in spring 2005. Humanities has rarely been taught in the classroom and then only in the Weekend College Program. During most of the past five years, Linda Carpenter has taught Humanities 110 or Humanities 114 in the Coastline Study Abroad Program twice a year (spring and summer), often combined with English 180 (Shakespeare) or English 164 (Introduction to Dramatic Literature). After 2008, however, the Coast Community College District no longer accepted the travel vendor American Council on International Studies.

In addition to the Communications 100 telecourse, an online section of Communications 100 is now taught in the regular semester.

Even though there has been a great expansion of online classes being taught, the number of on-site classroom classes has not shown a comparable decrease. Just as it did five years ago, the College continues to offer one on-site section each of English 097 and English 098 and four on-site sections of English 100. Now one (sometimes two) on-site sections of English 099 (in contrast to the three English 099 sections in spring 2005) are scheduled in regular semesters. No on-site sections of English 102 or 103 (formerly English 105) are offered now. No philosophy courses are offered in the classroom now in the regular semester schedule except for Philosophy 120 in the STAR Program, which is a hybrid class that is mostly online.

Five on-site speech classes are offered this semester in the regular College schedule whereas there were seven sections in spring 2005. The speech faculty say that this decrease is due to the new allowance of Communications 100 to count as the A1 requirement for the Option 1 A.A. degree. Speech classes now have almost all transfer students whereas the enrollment in the Communications 100 sections has greatly increased. However, the addition of speech classes in the high schools makes a total of nine sections of speech being taught in spring 2010, two more than in spring 2005.

The STAR (Strategic Technology-Assisted Rapid) Program continues as it has in the past with a 16-week section of English 100 and another of English 102 offered every semester and with 8-week sections of Speech 110 and Philosophy 120 being offered during the fall semester. Those enrollments have remained much the same through the years. STAR classes are hybrid classes with most of the time spent online except for Speech 110, which must have 51% of the time in the classroom in order to transfer to California State Universities.

Since the last Humanities Program Review, two new venues have been created to offer college courses to high school students: the Credits for College Program and the Early College High School. In the Credits for College Program, Coastline offers classes after school on high school campuses of those schools within our District boundaries. Almost all the high schools have participated. Before the budget cuts of this academic year, each high school would request two courses to be taught a semester. Several courses in the Humanities disciplines have been offered: Philosophy 100, Philosophy 115, Philosophy 120, Speech 110, Humanities 130, and English 145. One year, the high schools in the Garden Grove District requested sections of English 097, 098, and 099 so that students could make up deficiencies in high school English classes. This year, because of budget cuts in the Coast Community College District, Coastline has had to limit each high school to only one college class each semester. Speech 110 and Humanities 130 are being offered in the Credits for College Program in spring 2010.

The Early College High School was created with a grant from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation in partnership with the Newport-Mesa Unified School District. It is located at Coastline's Costa Mesa Center. It began with almost 100 freshman students in fall 2006. The next year, another 100 students were added, and the sophomore students took Speech 110 in addition to their high school classes and one or two other college classes. Two sections of Speech 110 were taught each semester that year and the following year. This year, 2009-2010, it is Speech 101 that is being taught to sophomores; the course was created by full-time Speech Professor Glenn Harwood as being more appropriate for younger students. This year the seniors are taking one section of Humanities 100 each semester. Next year, the fifth year of the program, students will take English 100, English 102, and Humanities 130. The pattern will continue every year. These additional sections have added to the FTES generated by the Humanities disciplines.

Courses and Services for Incarcerated Students

The numbers of incarcerated students have grown through the last five years, reaching almost 25% of Coastline's total student population last year. The Humanities courses have been very much a part of the education of these students, who can take only telecourses and independent-study courses. Five of our telecourses are available for these students: Communications 100, Humanities 110, Philosophy 100, Philosophy 115 (a cable course), and Philosophy 120. In addition, this past year, independent-study correspondence courses have been developed specifically for incarcerated students. Marg Taylor designed a correspondence course in English 103, Business English, and Terry Strauss Thacker designed a correspondence course in English 135, Business Writing. Both of these courses were developed for the Distance Learning Department and may be used by other Coastline English or Business faculty. In addition, Ken Leighton has developed three one-half-unit correspondence basic skills English courses for these students. Two are being offered this semester, and one will be offered in the fall.

Students have been able to earn an Option 1 A.A. degree by taking all telecourses except for the English requirement. To accommodate incarcerated students, we have allowed them to take English 099 by Credit by Exam, which has fulfilled the English Proficiency requirement. The requests for this course have continued to grow through the years. Department Chair Marilyn Fry prepares these exams and sends them to proctors at prisons along with a letter, nine sheets of special test paper, and an addressed return envelope. When the essay exams are returned to the Admissions and Records Office at Coastline, Ken Leighton and Marilyn Fry grade them. Most students have passed and have received 3 units credit for having taken English 099 by Credit by Exam. If a student does not pass, his or her exam is returned to the prison proctor along with information and exercises on the specific grammar problems. The student is encouraged to study these and to take the exam again at a later date.

The requests for Credit by Exam English 099 final exams have grown through the years Coastline has been serving these students. The following chart shows the number of exams sent to incarcerated students.

However, in July 2009, the California Education Code changed, and English 099 will no longer be allowed to fulfill the English requirement for any A.A. degree. Those students who have previously been enrolled in Coastline and have continued every semester will still be allowed to count English 099, but new students will not. For that reason, Terry Strauss Thacker spent last year developing a correspondence course for English 135 for Coastline, which can count for the Option 1 A.A. degree. It was offered this semester but was not included in information sent to prisons, so it did not have sufficient enrollment. English 135, Business Writing, will be scheduled every semester from now on. As fewer and fewer students can count English 099 for the English Proficiency requirement, we expect that two or more sections of English 135 will be scheduled each semester. Incarcerated students will have to take the English Placement Test, or they can take the correspondence version of English 103, Business English. It is a prerequisite for English 135 and does not require the English Placement Test for enrollment. Students should also find the new correspondence basic skills English classes helpful for preparation.

The incarcerated students seem very pleased with the classes they are taking from Coastline Community College. On the student surveys, 96.58% reported being satisfied or very satisfied with the quality of instruction, and 96.64% said that they were satisfied or very satisfied with the relevance of assignments and exams.

The written comments show expressions of appreciation of the opportunities that Coastline is providing them to receive a college education. Many express concerns that State budget cuts to prisons will limit the education departments in the prisons and, therefore, their access to college classes. One student wrote, "I think the program is beautiful." Here are some of the better comments on the Coastline program in the prisons:

“Thank you for giving me the opportunity to further my education, and become a better person with a purpose and direction in my life.”

“God bless you for caring for [those of us who] exist behind these prison walls!!!!”

“This program has really built my self-esteem. I know now I can move forward with my life in a positive light. Hopefully this will help me to not return to prison, and I am able to get a good paying job.”

The incarcerated students tended to comment on the whole college program, not on just the classes in the Humanities Program. They requested classes and certificates in many departments and made comments about classes in other departments (we have passed those suggestions on to the appropriate deans and department chairs). Their persistent complaints are that instructors and the Distance Learning Department do not return their quizzes and tests in a timely manner and that instructors do not respond to their requests for information. Some complained about their local proctor, and some praised the local proctor.

Some comments were about classes in the Humanities Program:

“I am more hip about the tools in communication and the powers that come with the importance of communication.”

“In Communications 100, I learned a huge amount of information that is relevant to my daily life that I would not have known otherwise. It was interesting and enjoyable.”

“Having my English 103 instructor respond with positive feedback to an inquisitive letter I wrote” was one student’s most positive experience.

“My English teacher was very helpful when my midterm exam got lost in the mail, she worked it out for me to take it online with her, and I was still able to meet my deadline. I was VERY happy.”

Another student’s most positive experience was “Being able to see a teacher in the video.”
(Philosophy 115 cable course)

The courses most often mentioned as being informative or enjoyable were Philosophy courses.

Students made many suggestions about more classes and certificates in different departments in the College. Some wanted Coastline to offer a B.A. degree, and a few even wanted an M.A. degree. Some wished that instructors and counselors could come to the prisons in person to help them. Mostly, they wanted more variety in the course offerings. For courses in the Humanities Division, quite a few said that they wanted more English classes, both literature and writing classes. The most requested course was Freshman Composition, our transfer-level English 100 course. A few also wanted a speech class. It is not possible to fulfill either of these requests as the California State University has repeatedly made it clear in writing to Coastline that it will not accept for transfer any speech class not taught at least 51% of the time in the classroom or any English 100 class taught by telecourse or by correspondence.

Changes in Faculty

The biggest change in the program has been the addition of a full-time English faculty position. Ken Leighton was hired to be the new full-time English professor in fall 2008. He has been a wonderful addition to the department with his knowledge of Student Learning Outcomes and his creation of many online classes. However, we are also losing full-time faculty in our disciplines. Professor Margaret Hickey retired in June 2009, and faculty throughout the College are urging the administration to hire a full-time Student Success Coordinator to replace her by fall 2010. Full-time English Professor Marilyn Fry has announced her retirement in December 2010, and full-time Speech Professor Glenn Harwood has announced his retirement in December 2011. We feel that it is important to replace these faculty when they retire.

Most of our faculty are active Coastliners, serving on several College committees; 9 of the 22 respondents to the faculty surveys said that they serve on College committees, particularly the Academic Senate and the Curriculum Committee. Most listed many committees that they serve on. Most, 17, (81%) attend the All-College Meeting held in fall and spring; 13 (61.9%) attend Coastline's Summer Technology Institute. Others attend discipline-related workshops or other technology-related workshops, and 5 belong to professional associations, and 8 attended professional conferences. Humanities faculty have also received or been nominated for awards like the NISOD (National Institute for Staff and Organizational Development) Teaching Excellence Award, Coastline Teaching Excellence Award, Online Teaching Award, and/or Who's Who. Most of the faculty in the program have been teaching with Coastline for many years. Five or six have been here since Coastline opened in 1976.

When the faculty survey was announced, 22 instructors responded. Most, 14 instructors, (63.6%) are online instructors as most of the courses in the program are taught online. Of the learning center sites, 6 (27.3%) teach at the Le-Jao Center; 3 (13.6%) teach at the Garden Grove Center, and 3 (13.6%) teach at the Costa Mesa Center, where the STAR Program and the Early College High School are located. In the Credits for College Program, only 2 instructors responded to the survey, 1 who teaches at Fountain Valley High School and 1 who teaches at Edison High School. Two telecourse/cable/video instructors responded.

For the most part, the Humanities faculty are satisfied with most aspects of the program. Nobody marked "very dissatisfied" on anything, and only 1 person was dissatisfied with any aspect of the classes taught to local and distant students. However, the one big area of complete dissatisfaction is from 3 instructors who teach in the Incarcerated Students Program; they all are dissatisfied with the lack of support they receive from the Incarcerated Services Support Team.

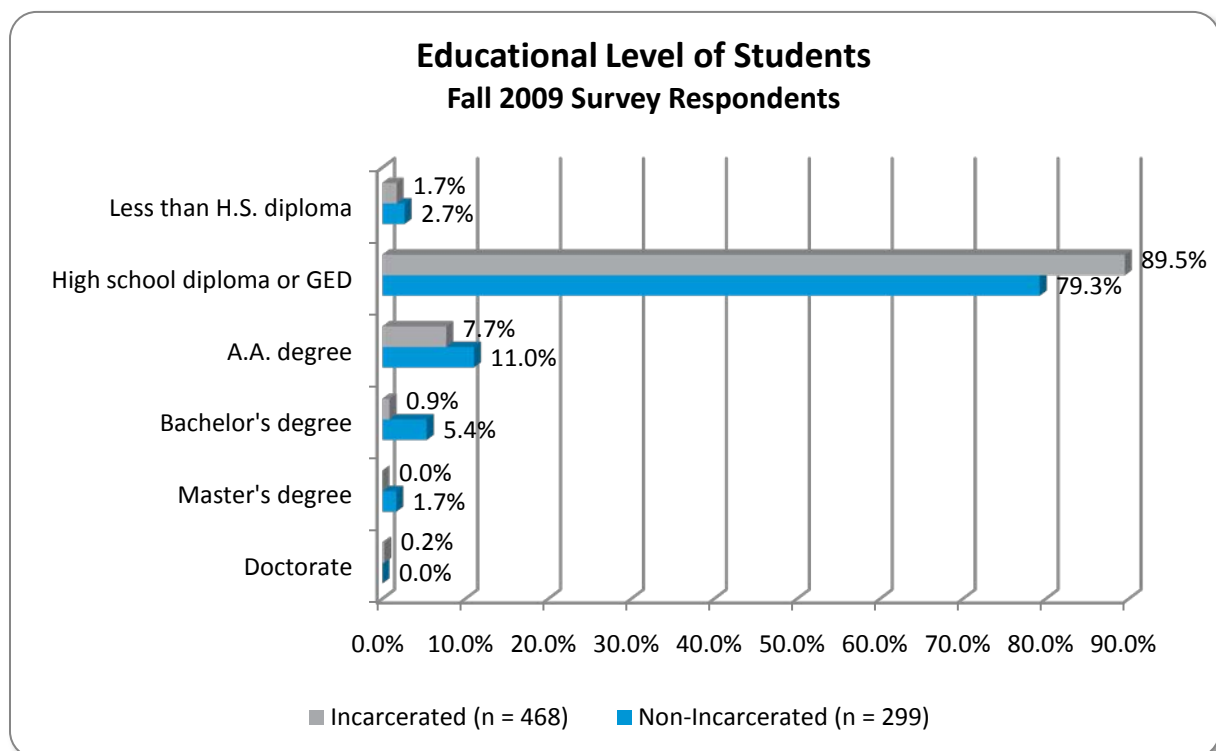

Eleven (52.4%) use the Coastline Virtual Library and/or give regular or extra-credit assignments to their students that require the use of the Virtual Library.

The Humanities Department Chair position is now a shared position. Both Marilyn Fry and Ken Leighton were elected for two-year terms, which began in fall 2009.

Need

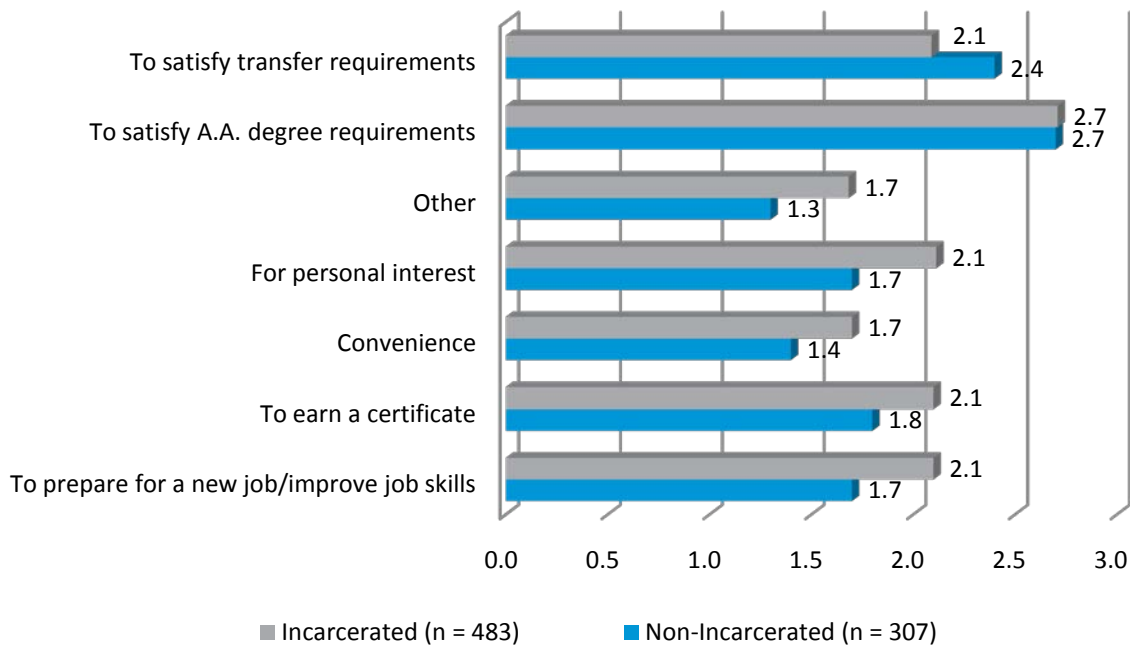

Courses in the Humanities are needed by all students who hope to earn an A.A. degree, particularly those who wish to transfer to a four-year institution. Humanities courses are the only ones that meet the requirements of Group A—English Language Communication and Critical Thinking—for the Option 2 A.A. Degree, which transfers to the California State University System. For A1, Oral Communication, students must take one of the Speech courses: 100 or 101 or 110. For A2, Written Communication, students must take English 100. For A3, Critical Thinking, students must take English 102 or Philosophy 115. Many Humanities Program courses can be chosen to meet Group C—Arts and Humanities. In addition two English classes (English 102 and 108) can be chosen to complete the Group E—Lifelong Understanding and Self-Development—requirement.

Students in the Humanities Program are much like other Coastline students. The majority of the students in the program have received a high school diploma or have passed a GED (General Education Development) high school equivalency test: 89.5% for incarcerated students and 79.3% for non-incarcerated. The reason for the lower number of non-incarcerated students is probably due to the numbers of high school students who now take Coastline classes as part of the Credits for College or Early College High School. Some of our students already have an A.A. degree (11.0% for non-incarcerated and 7.7% for incarcerated). A few even have B.A. or M.A. degrees.

Not surprisingly, student survey respondents indicated that the primary reasons they are taking Humanities classes at Coastline are to satisfy transfer and A.A. degree requirements. (Numbers indicate the average ranking score on a scale of 0 to 3, with 3 being the highest possible score.)

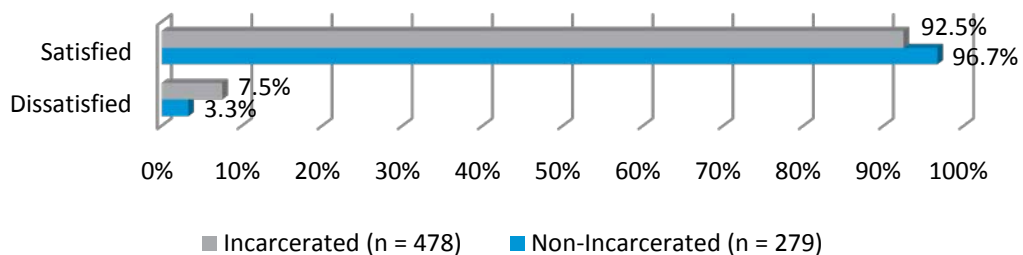

Primary Reasons for Taking Humanities Classes at Coastline
Average Ranking Score on Fall 2009 Student Survey

Based on responses to the student survey, 44.6% of the students taking Humanities Program classes are primarily working on an Associate of Arts degree with a major in English.

Students reported satisfaction with the relevance of classes to their academic and vocational needs, with 92.5% of incarcerated students and 96.7% of non-incarcerated reporting satisfaction in this area.

Resources

No particular resources or equipment or facilities are needed by courses in the Humanities Program. Although most of the courses are taught in a distance learning format, all the courses in the program could be taught in the classroom with simply a blackboard and chalk.

Partnerships

Humanities Program courses are taught in different programs within Coastline Community College: the Early College High School, the Credits for College Program, the Incarcerated Student Program, and the contract education Military Education Program.

Faculty in the five departments that make up the Humanities Program have been meeting with faculty from Orange Coast College and Golden West College as part of the District Audit Project to work on providing courses to students in the Coast Community College District that are named and numbered the same.

Professional Development

Based on survey responses, the majority of faculty (81%) participate in the All-College Meeting in fall and spring. Faculty participation is also strong in Coastline’s Summer Technology Institute (61.9%) and in discipline-related workshops (57.1%),

		Response Percent	Response Count
CCC All-College Meeting in Fall and Spring		81.0%	17

In addition to the various professional development activities shown in the table above, faculty in the Humanities Program are also involved in a large number of college and district-wide committees, including those shown in the table below.

Coastline Committees/Organizations/Task Forces	District Committees/Activities
Academic Senate (and numerous subcommittees)	District Degree Audit Project Task Force
Academic Standards Committee	District-Wide Academic Senate Meetings
Classified Council (Senate representative)	Golden West College Online Education Committee

Faculty members in the Humanities Department are not only involved in many college activities, they have also been recognized repeatedly for outstanding achievement. Recognition has included nominations for the Online Teaching Award and for Who's Who in Community College instructors, listing in Who's Who in America, awarding of full professorship, and recognition from Coastline's Classified Council. Department Chair Marilyn Fry has been honored with the National Institute for Staff and Organizational Development Excellence Award (2009) and the Coastline Teaching Excellence Award.

Quantitative Elements

Course Data

Enrollments in the Humanities Program and in the College in general have increased over the last five years. In fall 2004, the courses in the Humanities Program generated 218.14 Full Time Equivalent Students (FTES), and in fall 2009, the courses in the Humanities Program generated 306.37%, which was 12.1% of the total FTES for the College for that semester. Through the past five or six years, the Humanities' portion of the FTES for the College has remained between 12% and 13%.

Class sections have increased from 76 to 90 in the five-year period. Final seat count has increased from 1979 to 2824 in that same period.

Student Elements

As the chart on the following page illustrates, enrollments in distance learning classes far outnumber enrollments in site-based classes. Part of the cause is the increase in the number of online classes and the slight decrease in site-based classes. But the main cause probably is the loading factor of telecourses (70 students per 1 Lecture Hour Equivalent) with hundreds of students a semester in an individual telecourse. Also, except for English writing classes, which are limited to 30 students per class, all the other online classes can be turned into large-lecture classes that also have over 100 students per class for fewer LHEs than site-based classes.

With the very large enrollments in telecourses, it is not surprising that enrollments are greatest in Philosophy with its three telecourses. We don't understand the big jump in FTES in Basic Skills English classes beginning spring 2008—from 3.74-10.00 in previous semesters to 18.31 that semester.

Based on Fall 2009 enrollments, almost 50% of all students in FTES-generating classes are under the age of 30.

Male students outnumber female students in Humanities classes 55% to 44%. The number of male students may be influenced in part by the large number of incarcerated men taking classes in the prisons.

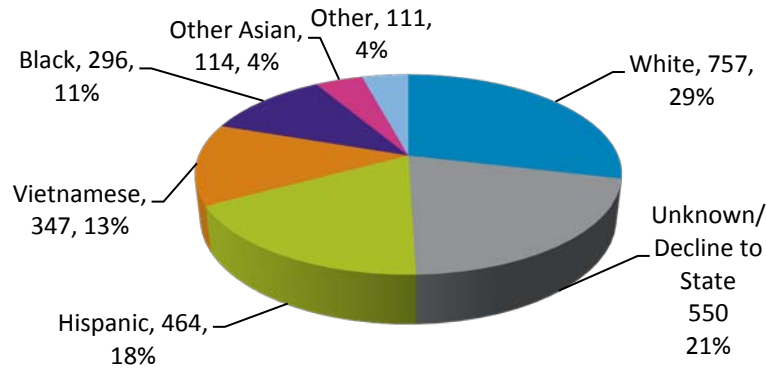

There is considerable ethnic diversity in Humanities classes. Although students who define themselves as white make up the single largest group (29%), students from other ethnic groups account for 50 percent of the student population. The ethnicity of 21% of the students, however, is not known.

Student Ethnicity

Fall 2009

Unduplicated Headcount at Census: 2639

Students responding to the Fall 2009 Student Survey (non-incarcerated) indicated a high level of satisfaction with the extent to which faculty and staff meet the needs of culturally diverse students. Only 2% (5 students) of the survey respondents indicated any dissatisfaction.

The most positive experience that I have encountered at Coastline...has been the teachers' understanding of active duty military dependents, since we have many roles, such as mother, wife, homemaker, and among many others on top of being an active student at Coastline.

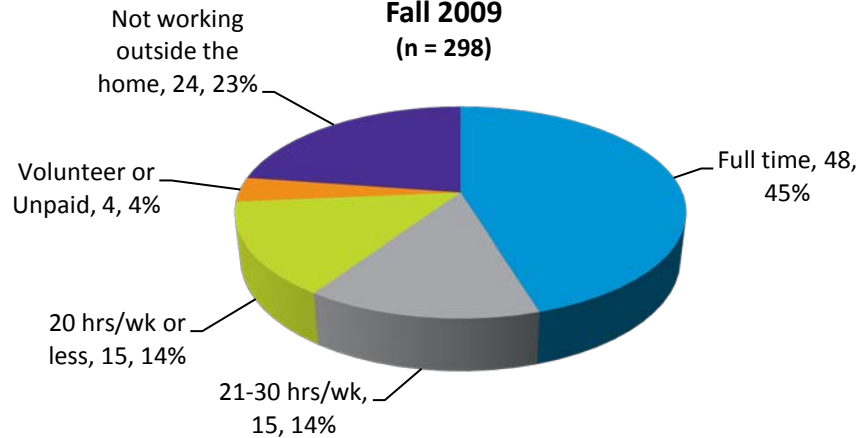

Response from Student Survey

Based on survey responses (not including incarcerated), the majority of students (59%) are working 20 or more hours per week.

Employment Status

(n = 298)

Respondents to the student survey reported a high level of satisfaction (97.4%) with the extent to which faculty and staff meet the needs of non-traditional students (e.g., older adults, working adults, active duty military, etc.). Many students commented specifically on the flexibility and understanding that faculty members show to active duty military, other working adults, and to older adults returning to school.

Cost Data

No special equipment or facilities are needed in the Humanities program. The only expenses in the Humanities Program are faculty salaries. The program has only three full-time faculty in the Program, but there are 25-30 part-time faculty, whose salaries are much less per Lecture Hour Equivalent (LHE). All of the four commercial telecourses are taught by part-time faculty, who are typically paid 2 to 6 LHEs for 25 to 350 students or 9 LHEs for up to 479 students. The Philosophy 115 Cable Course is taught by a part-time instructor and is loaded like an online course. Almost all of the online classes are taught by part-time faculty as well. The new full-time English professor is the only full-time teacher who teaches online courses. He has been in the full-time position for almost two years now. Whatever the status of the instructor, when an online class becomes classified as a large-lecture class, many more students are served for much lower salary costs. For example, Communications 100, Humanities 110 and 130, and Philosophy 100, 115, and 120 are almost always taught as large-lecture classes every semester and summer with the part-time instructor receiving 4.5 LHEs per section for as many as 119 students.

Complete cost data was not available; however, data that was available indicates that instructional salaries for part-time faculty in 2008-09 totaled $385,441 (not including fringe benefits). Data for the first six months of 2009-10 shows expenditures of $195,083. Not included in these totals are the salaries for the three full-time faculty members in the program, some of whom also have reassigned time and/or stipends for Union, Senate, and Department Chair responsibilities.

In 2008-09, the Humanities Program generated just over $3.7 million in apportionment revenues. When full-time faculty salaries and benefits for both full-time and part-time faculty are factored in, the revenue to instructional cost ratio is still well over 3 to 1.

Program Outcomes

Student Learning Outcomes

Program-Level Learning Outcomes

The English Department has identified four expected learning outcomes for students completing an A.A. degree with a major in English:

1. The student will be able to write well-organized, well-developed expository essays in a variety of rhetorical modes, using Standard English, with a clear thesis statement and supporting topic sentences and supporting details.

2. The student will be able to search for and find reliable, unbiased sources and to use these sources in research papers, using correct MLA documentation.
3. The student will be able to analyze a given literary work and explain its relevance to the time period and genre in which it was written as well as the relationship between the events in an author's life, time, and culture to the development of his or her writing.
4. The student will be able to evaluate a literary work in terms of style and descriptive technique, language, tone, mood, and literary conventions, such as symbolism, imagery, irony, and poetic devices such as meter and rhyme pattern.

The department has established a goal to identify and implement assessment of the program-level outcomes by Fall 2010.

Course-Level Learning Outcomes

Background

As part of the Program Review process, the Humanities faculty were asked to evaluate one course-level SLO for each course they taught in the fall of 2009. Below is a snapshot of the instructions the faculty were given:

Faculty should assess at least one SLO. In addition to assessing and reporting the SLO results, the faculty member should note whatever changes are required to improve outcomes in the future. Those changes are not limited to changing the assessment instrument. In fact, that might be the last thing to consider. After all, one doesn't just change the assessment instrument to make the results come out better next time. Changes might be required in the instruction (e.g., more emphasis on a particular area, use of more comprehensive examples, opportunities for more practice, etc.) or in the program's curriculum (e.g., perhaps students entering the class do not have sufficient foundation skills to succeed, thus changes to the advisory or pre-requisite or the curriculum of those classes might be in order).

(Email from Pat Arlington to Ken Leighton, 10/19/09)

Process

To facilitate this reporting, Instructional Researcher Pat Arlington coordinated the development of a "Progress Notes" section in the Seaport gradebook:

The format of the Progress Notes page was clear, so faculty had little trouble understanding what they were supposed to evaluate. The “Note any changes. . .” section—the third box on the form—represents the final step in the Student Learning Assessment Cycle, the point at which faculty must assess their teaching and consider changes to improve student achievement.

Reporting Results

Reports were received from 82% of the active English sections and 75% of all other active Humanities sections. (It should be noted that some of the Humanities faculty are unfamiliar with Seaport as they are classroom instructors; this may have been a factor in the less-than-100% reporting.)

SLO Evaluation Results Overall

In the 45 sections for which a response (including data) was provided, an average of 87% of the students achieved the SLO being measured.

Not all reporting included quantitative analysis, though, as some instructors offered a narrative only (without numbers). Therefore, those sections are listed below as providing information on student performance regarding the SLO being measured but offering “No data.”

SLO Evaluation Results in Detail

The Humanities faculty provided many interesting and thoughtful recommendations to improve future learning outcomes. These changes fell into three general categories:

1. Changes to instruction
2. Enhanced/increased communication
3. Coastline's library/librarian

Changes to Instruction

Most of the recommendations fell into this category; 74% of the respondents reported that they plan to change or enhance their instruction in some way. Below are some examples of what Humanities faculty plan to do:

- I will implement more individualized instruction on specific grammar skills and require a midterm practice paragraph that reflects the skills required on the final.
- 1. To improve this outcome, I will more strongly emphasize the prewriting activities and have students turn in these activities as a part of their writing process. 2. I will spend more time on Chapter 4, "Unity and Coherence," and use the exercises on improving coherence in this chapter to a greater extent.
- In addition to the several steps previously set up to guide students to a successful completion of the research paper, in the spring semester I plan to give students a 2-page handout reemphasizing appropriate sources. In addition, I plan to have a conference during the 10th week with any student who has not yet received a grade on the library assignment due on the 9th week. If that assignment is not turned in by the 12th week, I will drop the student (this warning is already printed in the schedule in my syllabus).
- Examples of essays will be added to demonstrate the format desired.
- I must always improve the teaching and learning tools that the course offers. I still have 4 video lectures to complete. I need to complete them. I also want to develop some other learning tools. Some of my ideas include: learning games like crossword puzzles and adding videos on fallacious reasoning to the course website.
- I have a PowerPoint Presentation for each chapter covered each week. I provide graphic representations of the more difficult words or concepts from the book for the ESL students. They have reported this to be a tremendous way for them to understand words that were foreign to them. Some of our students are not good test takers. This semester (Fall, 09) I have provided Chapter Reviews for extra credit points. I provided these extra credit activities after each test to help make up for poor test scores. This resulted in doing extra credit in a frenzy, just to make up for poor test performance. Instead of providing the Chapter Review extra credit after the test, I am going to start offering the Chapter Review Extra Credit before for each chapter: before I present the chapter information. That way, it will encourage the students to read the chapter before it is presented in class and ultimately help them to learn the information, participate actively in classroom discussion, perform better on tests and ultimately apply the information they learn in their daily lives.

Communication

The second most frequent change reported was how instructors communicate with their students; 19% of the respondents indicated plans to address this area.

- Encourage at least a one-time meeting with the instructor to anchor the class in the student's mind and give texture to the parameters of the purpose of achievement and outcomes in their lives.

- One thing I can do to improve with regard to this issue is to follow up with a student immediately when he or she does not submit work. A personal note from his or her instructor might help a student find the motivation to stick with the work and feel less overwhelmed. The amount of work required for this course is somewhat heavy, but with encouragement and feedback, students do well. I could do a better job of keeping personal contact with students who might be struggling.
- The students who did not achieve this outcome failed to submit the final assignment. To address this, I'll send an additional message in the 15th week reminding students that the final assignment is due.

Library

Three percent of the responses referred to Coastline's library and librarian:

- Having a class of only 26 students makes it much easier for the students to get opportunities to speak in public each week thereby practicing the skills I have taught them. Next time I will bring Cheryl Stewart back to give a workshop on using the Coastline online library. Cheryl agreed to come to present her workshop of using the Coastline library even at this late date in the semester. The students found this very helpful and I am looking forward to hearing their speeches.
- In the Spring of 2010, I will explain the concept of documentation earlier in the course and require my students to document one research source from the Virtual Library in an essay written prior to the midterm. This will teach them the concept of proper documentation before the final argumentative research essay.

The Humanities Faculty Plan to Improve SLO Measurement

The introduction of the SLO Progress Notes feature will help improve SLO measurement tremendously. Faculty can now track student progress and make notes regarding improvements to their courses and assessment instruments and strategies throughout the semester.

One of the Humanities Program's 5-year Goals is to continue to promote the use of the Progress Notes feature for continuous course improvement; therefore, this topic will be addressed at all Discipline meetings from now on in an effort to help faculty fully implement the Student Learning Outcomes Assessment Cycle.

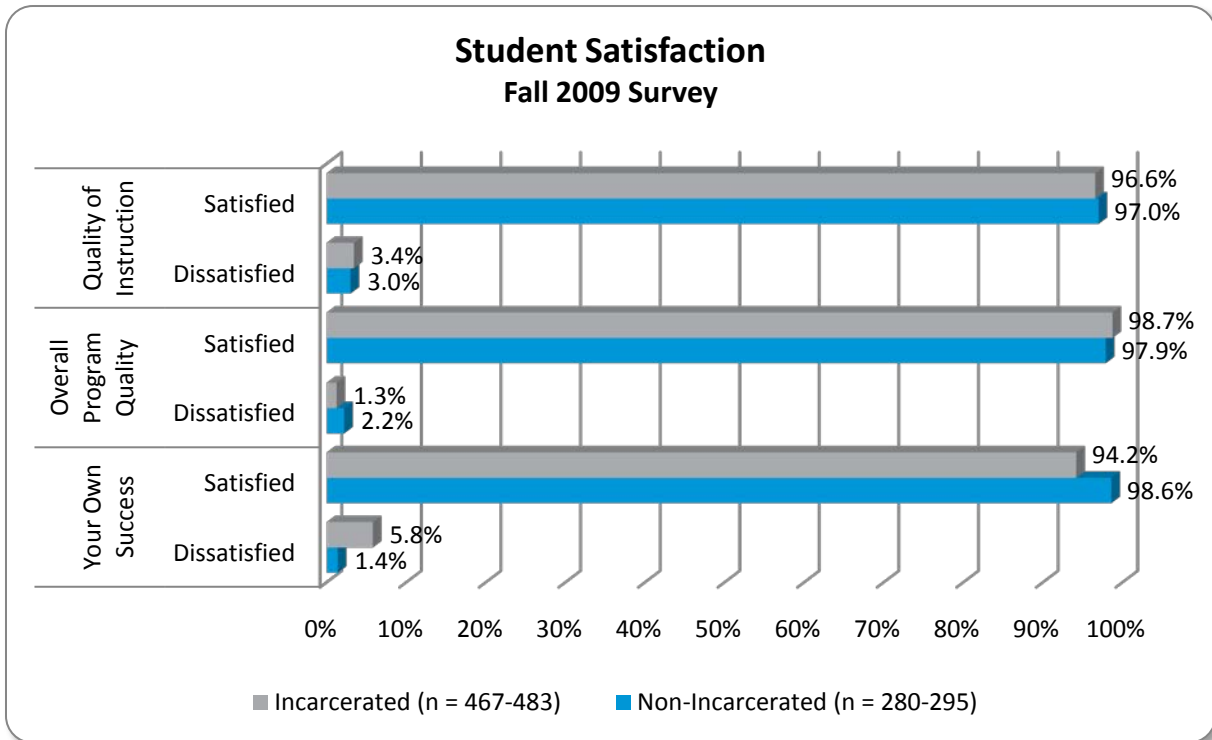

Other Student Outcomes

No other outcomes available at this time.

Student Satisfaction

Based on survey responses, students are quite satisfied with the Humanities Program and the classes they are taking. Students gave high marks to both the quality of instruction (incarcerated, 96.6%; non-incarcerated, 97.0%) and to the overall program quality (incarcerated, 98.8%; non-incarcerated, 97.9%).

Both groups were generally satisfied with their own success, though incarcerated students rated their satisfaction slightly lower in this area than did other students.

The comments that students provided on the survey reveal the quality of their interaction with Humanities Program faculty and their perception of the faculty as well-organized, dedicated, and supportive. The comments below are responses to “Please tell us what your most positive experience has been in any of the Coastline classes you have taken in this particular program.”

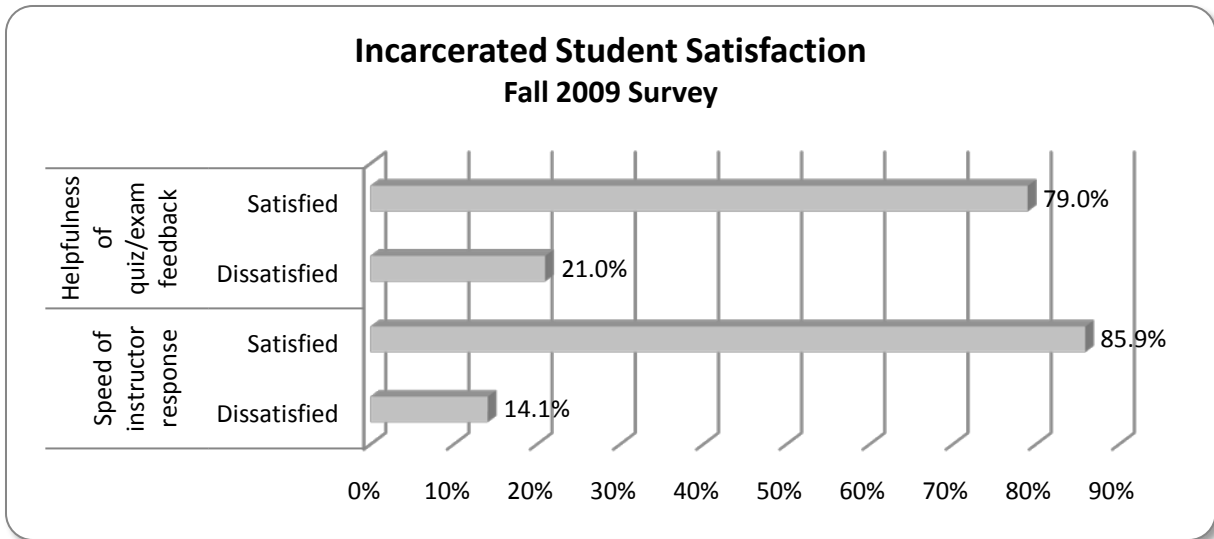

- Dr. Robert Covert is without a doubt, the best instructor I have had in my many years of schooling. He takes extra time to make sure he communicates even the tiniest bit of information to all of his students.
- Professors are willing to work with students.
- Very friendly and very understanding.
- The prompt responses from each and every professor. Every element is very user-friendly. I know that the professors are very busy, and I very much appreciate their efforts.
- My most positive experience is actually being able to take online courses and getting to know these professors. They are helpful and insightful. I really enjoy taking courses online due to my busy schedule at home.
- It is my first time taking online classes and the experience has been great. The class discussion forum is one positive experience because it offers a live interaction feeling with other classmates. Another positive experience is how quickly the instructor responds to inquiries.
- All the classes I have taken have been positive. The instructors have been great.
- The professors are wonderful!

- The teachers in English classes are very devoted, and the lessons are useful.
- I actually learned a lot about the particular subjects. The instructors used excellent approaches to cover the material.
- Mrs. Fry is a good teacher, and I would recommend her for English classes.
- ...Professor Leighton [is] fabulous in providing specific detailed feedback.
- A couple years ago, I took an English course through Professor Taylor. I learned a lot in her class and really enjoyed the interaction between her and the different students enrolled in the class. I was able to take away many things to put to use at my job
- I traded several e-mails with my Children's Literature professor who was very encouraging of my choice in English degree and with regard to the work I turned in. He even sent additional links with regard to job options within the English field.
- I have learned a great deal in my current Interpersonal Communications class and have enjoyed the instruction given by Professor Desmond.
- I have benefitted from both my instructor in my English 99 class and my Speech 100 class. They both made this very easy to understand for someone who has been out of school for many years.
- Marilyn Fry. She is an excellent English teacher.
- The professors have been extremely flexible and are willing to help me in any way possible. They truly want me to succeed.
- Great class and an even better instructor.

While it is very encouraging to receive such overwhelmingly positive feedback from students, it is also important to acknowledge that not every student has a positive experience and that there is always room for improvement. For the students whose expectations were not met, the most common concern was that instructor feedback was minimal and that student-to-student interaction was minimal.

- I would have appreciated an explanation to my questions as opposed to just being given the answers.
- The forums were misused. In prior classes, I had a lot of interaction with classmates and the instructor through the use of the forums. In this class, they only served as a medium for the students to voice their concerns about the layout of the class website (ex. I can't find ____ on the website, can someone please show me?)

Among incarcerated students, the areas of greatest concern related to instructor responsiveness (85.9 percent satisfaction) and the helpfulness of quiz and exam feedback (79.0 percent satisfaction), with the primary issue being that feedback was slow to arrive, often coming too late to help the student prepare for an exam.

Conclusions

The Humanities Program continues to thrive. Not only is there strong demand for the existing courses in English, Speech, Humanities, Philosophy, Communications, and Basic Skills English, but there are entirely new courses scheduled for Fall 2010, all of which we anticipate will “make” and be as successful as the other courses in the Program.

We are gratified to see such positive results from the Student Satisfaction surveys. The survey data indicate that nearly every student who is taking a Humanities Program course is satisfied with the course and instructor, and the data further show that almost every student is satisfied with his or her own progress as well. These results validate our efforts to provide academic excellence within the Humanities disciplines.

We are a strong discipline with a high degree of camaraderie and participation among the instructors, but we cannot rest on positive survey results alone. We must keep evolving as a Program by refining existing courses to make them even stronger, and we must continue to develop new courses to provide our students with exciting new curriculum. Another task ahead is to support and encourage our faculty to use the SLO Progress Notes feature in Seaport to facilitate continuous course improvement. We must see complete implementation of the Student Learning Outcomes Assessment Cycle within one year from the date of this Program Review report, and we will achieve this.

Although there is much work ahead, in the words of Stephen Sondheim, “Everything’s coming up roses.”

Recommendations

Staffing will be a critical matter over the next few years as two of the three full-time faculty in the Humanities Program have announced their intention to retire within two years. The Humanities Program strongly urges the college to replace these faculty members as they retire to ensure the continued excellence of Coastline in general and the Humanities Program in particular.

An associated staffing matter is the hiring of a full-time Student Success Coordinator. The Humanities faculty realize that their students need tutorial support, supplementary instruction, and access to a variety of Basic Skills resources and activities throughout their educational careers if they are to persist and succeed. A Student Success Coordinator is needed to design and implement a variety of services and programs to help our students reach their goals.

Goals

Progress on Prior Goals

Self-Review Goals

- 1. Within the next six months, all course outlines will be revised and reviewed by all faculty who teach those courses.

Most course outlines have been revised several times during the past five years. One course, Humanities 100, slipped through the cracks and did not get revised until recently. All course outlines in the program have now been revised as of April 2010.

- 2. Appropriate courses for Coastline's "Global and Multicultural Studies" A.A. degree requirement will be identified in time to be put into the 2005-2006 catalog.

The following courses were identified and listed in this section of the A.A. degree requirements in the 2005-2006 catalog: English 144, English 145, Humanities 100, Philosophy 100, Philosophy 113, and Speech 103. These same courses except Philosophy 113 are still listed in the 2009-2010 catalog. Philosophy 113 has been deleted since it is not a multicultural class, and Speech 103 has been retired, so they will not appear in next year's catalog.

- 3. The Humanities Program will expand student awareness and use of the Coastline Virtual Library.

All course outlines in the College now have the Coastline Virtual Library listed with the URL under "Supplemental Materials." Many of the Humanities faculty, particularly the English faculty, have assignments for students in the Coastline Virtual Library.

- 4. The departments within the Humanities Program will continue to develop and improve distance learning courses, including hybrid courses.

All departments in the Humanities Program have greatly expanded their offerings in online courses. No other hybrid courses have been developed in the departments except for the STAR Program courses and Humanities 130 as it is taught in the Credits for College Program.

- 5. The English Department will continue to lobby for adequate pay for those online instructors who teach the military students.

The pay rate was changed and much improved within the past five years.

The current pay rates (per student who finishes a course) are listed below:

Navy Onshore

$47.973 part time

$75.600 full time

Certain English classes (E097, E098, E099, E100, E102, E133, and E135)

$66.249 part time

$104.40 full time

NCPace

$27.413 part time

$43.200 full time

6. The English and Speech departments will continue to encourage smaller class sizes in English and Speech.

Union negotiations in 2006-2007 were successful in lowering the size of English composition classes from 38 to 30.

7. Within five years time, there will be a web page on Coastline's website for the Humanities Program as a whole with individual pages for each individual faculty member.

This has not been done. This will be included in the goals for the next five years.

8. Within the next two years, a joint lab for basic skills classes and ESL practice will be established at the new Westminster Center. A reading program will be reestablished.

No lab has been established. However, at last, in spring 2009, a reading program was established at the Le-Jao Center. Now students can enroll in one of four reading classes and can participate in face-to-face instruction at their convenience from 2:30 until 8:00 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

9. Continue to advocate for a full-time Philosophy instructor.

Philosophy faculty agree that a full-time Philosophy instructor is not needed. We have good part-time faculty teaching these courses, and a full-time instructor would take five of the existing classes, leaving some of our faculty with no classes or with very few classes.

Steering Committee Recommendations

1. Consider the feasibility of restoring some writing classes (journal, poetry, creative, professional, and/or advanced fiction writing) to the curriculum. Writing classes are well-suited to online delivery, and the use of rubrics for self-assessment of work and of student groups to critique student works could help lessen the burden on instructors.

Last year, a creative writing class, English 133, Fiction Writing, was brought back from suspension and has been taught online every semester (summer, too, before severe cutbacks) and in the Military Education Program.

- 2. The popularity of Communications 100 (as noted on page 5 of the Humanities Program Review Report) may not indicate student rejection of oral communications classes but rather may be an indication of student interest in distance delivery options. Based on that as well as on the increased availability of distance delivery technologies that support multimodal instruction and communication, continue to consider options for online speech classes that would include ample opportunities for both live and recorded oral communication and oral presentations.

Online speech classes are not feasible since the California State University Articulation Dean, Jo Service, has made it abundantly clear in written e-mail messages to Coastline that distance learning speech classes would not be accepted for transfer to the CSU campuses.

However, Dr. Glenn Harwood, at the express request of Coastline President, now Chancellor, Dr. Ding-Jo Currie, agreed to create a hybrid public speaking course exclusively for the Community College of the Air Force. He has spent the whole academic year of 2009-2010 working with personnel in the ISD (Instructional Systems Development—Coast Learning Systems) Department to create Speech 200, a hybrid course that would not be a transfer course. Coastline faculty will teach this course to Air Force personnel only. The course outline has been approved by the Coastline Curriculum Committee and by the Community College of the Air Force.

In addition, ISD has Dr. Harwood's permission to use any of the materials he has produced to create online speech courses that can be licensed for use in states other than California.

- 3. Continue work on SLOs by identifying expected SLOs for each course, reaching consensus on assessment methods, and implementing an assessment cycle; a departmental workshop approach might be most supportive.

Faculty in the Humanities Program have continued to do this. All course outlines in the program include robust SLOs; almost all faculty in the program have evaluated at least one SLO.

- 4. In addition to speech, identify other courses that could be recommended to students as appropriately symbiotic with the library class.

The librarian has been invited into English 100 classes to encourage students to enroll in English 108. When Glenn Harwood returns to the classroom in fall 2010, he is eager to have his students take English 108 and will invite the librarian to come to his classes to enroll students.

- 5. Continue to explore the feasibility of implementing the skills lab at Westminster - Goal #8.

Although no skills lab has been established, the new dean, Vinicio Lopez, has had faculty who teach and tutor in the Student Success Center conduct workshops on a variety of basic skills subjects in empty classrooms at the Le-Jao Center in Westminster.

6. As soon as the “Global and Multicultural Studies” criteria are clarified, identify qualifying humanities courses for the college catalogue - Goal #2

This has not been done.

7. Support the establishment of a reading lab.

This has been done. Beginning in spring 2009, a reading program was begun and continues to this day, partly supported by Basic Skills Initiative funding.

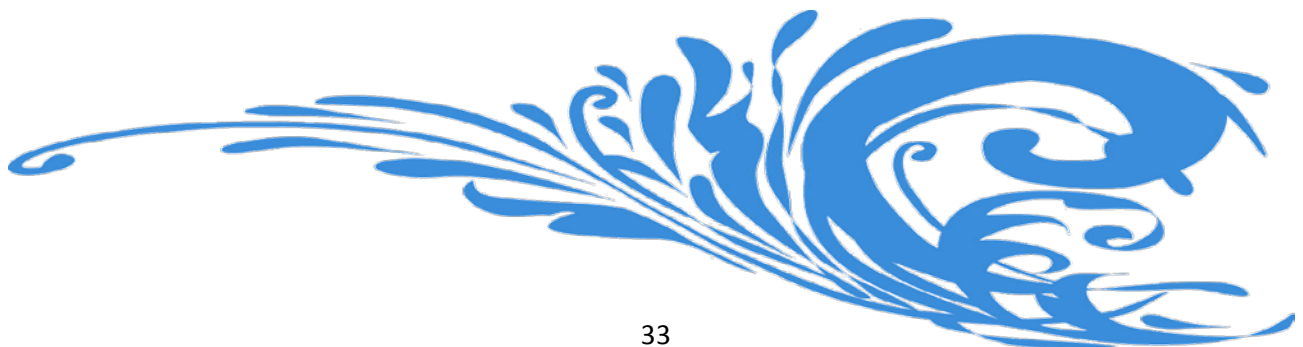

8. Given Coastline’s increasing number of incarcerated students, the program is encouraged to explore additional distance delivery options in English that would meet the needs of the incarcerated as well as of other populations.

Two 100-level courses have been developed as correspondence courses: English 103 and 135. In addition, three basic skills courses have been developed as correspondence courses.

New Five-Year Goals

The Humanities Program has identified 13 new five-year goals and target dates for completion:

1. Develop and implement a plan for assessing program-level student learning outcomes for the A.A. English major. (Fall 2010)
2. Hire a full-time Student Success Coordinator. (Fall 2010)
3. Hire a full-time English instructor. (Fall 2011)
4. Hire a full-time Communication Studies/Mass Communication instructor. (Fall 2012)
5. Develop and implement an online tutoring service for English Composition students. (Ongoing)
6. Expand Independent Study offerings for students who have no access to the Internet. (Fall 2014)
7. Expand literature offerings by 5 courses. (Fall 2014)
8. Expand writing courses to include Poetry and Screenwriting. (Fall 2014)
9. Establish a reading test as part of the English Placement Test and expand the reading program. (Fall 2012)
10. Encourage faculty to use the Progress Notes feature in Seaport for continuous course improvement. (Ongoing)
11. Create an English Department Web site. (Spring 2011)
12. Create a Philosophy Department Web site. (Spring 2011)
13. Create a Speech Department Web site. (Spring 2011)

2	Nov 19, 2009 10:11 PM	I would like some more work on using the SLO and College Rubric.
3	Nov 20, 2009 4:34 AM	I would like to know how to assess the SLO's, i.e. to see if the students are learning what they are supposed to be learning.
4	Nov 20, 2009 12:57 PM	I don't think we need more training at this time. We just need to keep working on the SLOAC and keep talking to one another.
5	Nov 23, 2009 9:45 PM	I have enjoyed excellent support in Distance Learning from Mark and Sylvia, and I consider Seaport absolutely brilliant in organizing and delivering our courses.
6	Dec 1, 2009 11:29 AM	Continued technology training on newer software and programs that are now available and/or will be available within the next twelve months.

4	Nov 20, 2009 4:37 AM	yes, a course on modern philosophy might work. I'd like to teach Ethics some day. A course on Epistemology or Metaphysics might be fun. Or a course on political philosophy might work.
5	Dec 1, 2009 11:30 AM	Additional mass communication courses.
6	Dec 4, 2009 12:07 AM	Yes, I think a hybrid Humanities 110 course would be ideal for the Credits for College program. This way we can help prepare high school students to the online course they will need to take at their respective college campuses. The Humanities 110 program fulfills the visual arts requirement at most high schools.

1	Nov 19, 2009 9:52 PM	Compositional writing for placement in English 100. Require that English 100 or its equivalent be a prerequisite for literature classes.
2	Nov 19, 2009 10:48 PM	I think the college should go back to shared governance and collegiality. It seems we used to have this. Now it seems as though administrators ask faculty for their input, pretend to listen, and then do what they want. Oftentimes , faculty is kept out of processes that faculty should be involved in. If that makes any sense. They pretend to listen
3	Nov 19, 2009 10:51 PM	That all faculty be given department laptops that are new.
4	Nov 20, 2009 4:37 AM	continuing to improve the course websites and the programs we use on them including seaport and squid. Continuing to be able to add video content to our courses, such as video tapings of lectures.

Question: If you answered Dissatisfied or Very Dissatisfied to any of the above items, please describe your concerns.

* Describe your concern

Would just like to see a little more variety of classes.

ISST is a little slow in responses, progress reports,
etc.

I have to add to [Q] about quality of instruction - for incarcerated individuals - we all don't have
TVs or are always able to view supporting video programs - would help if facility libraries had tapes/DVDs
available for review/instruction
outside of institution broadcast
schedules - a more truly independent, flexible access to course instruction/material.

Question: If you answered Dissatisfied or Very Dissatisfied to any of the above items, please describe your concerns.

While there are 3 philosophy classes available, there are only one each of humanities and communications. And there is no English class available. So I'm very dissatisfied with the variety of classes available.

Sometimes I need help or assignments and more studying. There are several courses that do not have any assignments, they only require reading. I don't learn by just reading, I need assignments to understand what I am reading because my mind wanders when I read. And some of the courses listed most interesting we read now.

I am very dissatisfied with the student handbook for Philosophy 115. The instructions were vague at best and non-existent for Mid-Term Review, Final Review and there was only 20 of the 28 lessons covered in the handbook. This made the course extremely difficult due to the fact that I don't have access to the videos for this course. I am dependant on good instructional aids that a handbook should have.

Question: Please tell us what your most positive experience has been in any of the Coastline classes you have taken in this particular program?

Our staff team at USPW are outstanding. They work individually and as a whole to help me accomplish my education in the appropriate areas.

It has furthered my education, I'm learning!

I have learned many things I otherwise would have never known about. But the one thing I enjoyed most was when I did good in a course I felt good about myself because of something I accomplished.

Phil 100 was fascinating and a truly enjoyable experience - all of the business courses have been enlightening and enjoyable.

I ENJOY LEARNING. DISTANCE LEARNING TENDS TO MAKE YOU MORE PROACTIVE IN THE READING AREA AND IT BECOMES MORE STUDY FOCUSED, WHICH IS ALL GOOD, FOR ME.

Question: Do you have any comments or suggestions for improving this particular program?

Right now I heard that this program is not being ran no more as of Jan. 2010. Keeping the program would not only help me but many other prisoners. Having prisoners with positive things on their minds may help them stay out of trouble whether in prison or out of prison. It's like giving us another option to take.

more instructor interaction for incarcerated students - Critical thinking required more interaction than correspondence courses normally provide.

To what extent do the classes you are taking in this program meet your expectations?
#	Response Date	If you indicated that the class is not as good as you expected, please describe your concerns.
1	Dec 2, 2009 3:43 AM	I have been disapointed in my instructor, she makes faces when we ask questions and says certain questions are too easy to do in the class and to just do them, or "you should know this"
2	Dec 2, 2009 6:39 PM	More focus and facilities for returning/adult learning students
3	Dec 2, 2009 6:43 PM	I think everything is fine for me.
4	Dec 3, 2009 2:51 AM	The english class I am taking has brodened my writing ability. It has helped me, help my daughter in her schools homework. Also I am very impressed with the work load here and I am very happy.
5	Dec 9, 2009 2:44 AM	the teacher seems rather partial. she also writes the book herself and she makes the rules. i have another student friends who's teachers say the exact opposite
6	Dec 9, 2009 8:12 PM	It was a good class, but its a little difficult to get a full scope of something like this online, for me anyway. But, I did enjoy it and am pleased with the instructors attentiveness to her students, and willingness to work with them in their situations.
7	Dec 10, 2009 12:45 AM	The courses I took require loading a program that is not compatible to Vista. Although I still have a computer with XP on it, I have limited access to it. I could not open the program on Vista. I emailed my teacher who responded back that they would forward the email to someone who could help me but I never got a response from anyone. I did finish the course but I will not be able to take anymore that use that program because we will probably be getting rid of XP completely very soon. A program that is compatible with Vista/Windows 7 needs to be used for these programs.
8	Dec 10, 2009 5:21 AM	I just thought I would receive more interaction from the instructor, to help.
9	Dec 10, 2009 7:47 AM	This is the first time I have taken college in my life. I knew I was not the college type, but here I am with an A.A. Degree.
10	Dec 10, 2009 3:01 PM	there were several mistakes made with the lesson schedule and/or the actual schedule which made things very frustrating.
11	Dec 11, 2009 1:25 AM	It was very hard! :)
12	Dec 11, 2009 3:19 AM	This class has been completely different from other English classes I have attended. I have never written college level essays in first person and I was confused by the terms that were being used to describe the different forms of essays I was required to write.
13	Dec 12, 2009 2:49 AM	The quiz and test questions were extremely hard to find in the book, and at times after re-reading chapters over and over I still remained stumped.
14	Dec 13, 2009 5:50 AM	it didnt record any of my stuff i had to take the lessons over at least 3 times until it showed on my progress
		I was expecting a little more involvement of the instruction (some instruction). The only knowledge that was passed on was through the text. There were some midterm essays, that once graded, there was no

16	Jan 5, 2010 8:57 AM	VERY DIFFICULT TO ACCESS.. The end user agreement link sends you on a spam-filled ride to advertisements. At the end of the ride your head spins and there is not one word to read and agree with. I had to check the "I agree" box to access the class and that is like signing a blank contract.....a pretty dumb thing to do. I spent hours working on the class only to be kicked out and have no trace of the work I did. I had to restart several times from scratch....very very very very very frustrating. I would not recommend this to anyone

1	Oct 21, 2009 11:45 PM	Not enough choices available.
2	Dec 2, 2009 3:45 AM	see previous
3	Dec 8, 2009 2:53 AM	There is no student lounge and there is no where to study at this campus. The break room is terrible. Le Jao is much better and this is a bigger campus.
4	Dec 8, 2009 2:53 AM	The grading seems quite harsh to me.
5	Dec 9, 2009 2:47 AM	instructors write the text books and there are inconsistencies in grammar rules for the English class
6	Dec 9, 2009 9:06 PM	The English test for class level should be changed to help student get the correct level.
7	Dec 9, 2009 10:27 PM	This is definitely a class-by-class thing meaning that most of the time I have wonderful, organized, responsive teachers. For instance both my creative writing, children's lit, and History of Iraq teachers were AWESOME!! However, my cinema teacher seems quite disorganized. The lesson schedule indicated she was going to test us on chapters that did not assign as reading, although she mostly fixed the problem when a student made her aware of it. Some of her quizzes covered material that was neither in the book or part of the lectures. Mostly, I have had wonderful teachers.
8	Dec 10, 2009 5:25 AM	I am just not receiving any feedback from the instructor, to know where I need to improve so I can understand the material better.
9	Dec 11, 2009 3:36 AM	The instructor seemed to get distracted and never really lectured nor gave notes, all that was expected was to read the book. The whole point of the class seemed to be that of reading book and then show up to class knowing the information. There was no review and nothing new was taught in the class. Although the instructor's intentions were good it sometimes left the student confused.
10	Dec 16, 2009 12:13 PM	The fact that if you are in the military program you can only take classes that are in the military program and not in the regular distance learning program. The regular distance learning program has a variety of classes that are not found in the military program. Military students should be able to take any class that Coastline offers online.
11	Dec 16, 2009 4:00 PM	I have taken all of my classes online thus far; the classes are set up well, but reaching the instructor is difficult. Pre-laid instructions are excellent, but when I have a specific question I never get a real answer. If I ask something about the class I usually won't get an answer, if I ask something about the material I'm advised to post to the forum. Fellow students seem to only field the easy questions on the forum, so it is a dead end. The worst communication slip-up was a grade. I scored a high B on a final and it posted as a 62%. I wrote the professor who said he'd fix it. He didn't, the course closed and my overall grade dropped from a low A to a C, very frustrating.
12	Dec 18, 2009 7:57 PM	Overall the courses I have taken at Coastline have been both challenging and rewarding. I have just satisfied all requirements to receive my Associates Degree. The military department as well as all the teachers have been outstanding during my online courses. I highly recommend to all active duty military

13	Dec 18, 2009 10:12 PM	My personal problem was instructions in one area were slightly different than when you clicked on another location. This made a problem for me and it appeared the majority of the class. The other was my problem, but my job does get in the way of any other activity. That is why I do not take classroom instruction. It got in the way of some deadlines.
14	Jan 5, 2010 9:02 AM	See comment from previous page, this comment was true for English 01 thru 09.... My blood pressure went up quite a bit.... like a horror show.... you really need to re-think this drink... bad juju

You indicated that you are taking a class in this program in a distance learning format. Please indicate the extent of your satisfaction with each of the following elements. (Skip any items that are not applicable to you.)

#	Response Date	If you answered that you were Dissatisfied or Very Dissatisfied with any of the above items, please describe the reasons for your dissatisfaction.
1	Dec 8, 2009 3:10 AM	My instructor for Phil 115 does not respond to questions or concerns about the homework assignments. The midterm had the same question twice, and when I answered it the same way, it was marked incorrect one time and correct another time. Overall, the Phil 115 Online course is extremely confusing and unsatisfactory -- it is one of the worst online classes I have ever taken.
2	Dec 9, 2009 10:28 PM	See my answer before. This is mostly teacher-related. The textbooks, etc. have been excellent.
3	Dec 10, 2009 12:49 AM	Please see my answer on previous question
4	Dec 10, 2009 2:33 AM	The problem I had with the class is that if you did not get the questions correct on the quiz, you were not given the correct answer, so more than likely you would get the answer wrong on the midterm and finals. I really would like to know what I got correct and wrong on the midterms and finals also. I do understand the concern with giving this information to the student.
5	Dec 11, 2009 3:19 AM	I havenot taken any class in a distance learning format.
6	Dec 11, 2009 3:21 AM	often I get questions that are not on the sylibus, and will trip me up during the on line quiz. I have had difficulty a few times where the answer I gave came out wrong on the test when I did not make the selection.
7	Dec 13, 2009 7:40 PM	When I was taking one of my quizzes I was kicked out because it could not connect to Seaport's server. When I went back in to complete the quiz it erased all my answers and still deducted time off the time clock. It was inconvenient and stressful because I didn't know if I would have enough time to re-enter my answers and complete the rest of the quiz.
8	Dec 15, 2009 4:09 AM	I was struggling with some of the subject and received no help when I asked the instructor. That made me very upset. I do not like not understanding things and when I ask for help and not recieve it, that is just wrong. I feel that as a teacher your job is to make sure that your students understand the subject matter and if they do not, to help them.
9	Dec 15, 2009 5:21 PM	the forums were misused. in prior classes, I had a lot of interaction with classmates and the instructor through the use of the forums. In this class they only served as a medium for the students to voice their concerns about the layout of the class website (ex. i can't find ____ on the website, can some one please show me?)
10	Dec 16, 2009 4:05 PM	Fellow students rarely interact other than chit chat. I've yet to see an intellectual conversation unfold in any forum thus far. Also, the instructors seem overburdened and unwilling to spend any real time answering questions. If it's about the material, they'll say to post it to the forum (no one responds to difficult questions). If it's about the course itself, no reply.
11	Dec 18, 2009 7:59 PM	Instuctors are very helpful and understanding of the active duty lifestyle and accomodate wonderfully.
12	Dec 18, 2009 8:21 PM	I would have appreciated an explanation to my questions as opposed to just being given the answers.
		I had a couple of problems (on my end) but it took a while for the support to get back to me. Helpful

13	Dec 18, 2009 10:14 PM	when they did though.
14	Jan 5, 2010 8:08 AM	When needed, tech support was IMPOSSIBLE to reach. An e-mail response after the fact was not enough. I received a snide remark from my instructor that students should not wait until the deadline date to do the quiz, although that was the time I was available to take the quiz. Its water under the bridge now, but there are many stressors already just in preparing for the quiz. The added stress of fearing that tech support would be required doesn't make for comfort.....
15	Jan 5, 2010 9:06 AM	see comments on first page... this was a nightmare, and I would never ever want my loved one to take this series of classes. You need to look at this from the students end..... you should spend hours and hours and be on the final exam and BAM! all of your hard work is wiped out and not one trace of your efforts remained... Such a disgusting piece of crap program in use for English 01 thru 09, how do instructors get paid for not working on these classes? There name is linked to them but there is absolutely no way to reach them, nor was there a way to reach any type of tech support....

90	Dec 9, 2009 7:58 AM	refreshed english skills
91	Dec 9, 2009 8:14 PM	I just want to improve my ability to learn different subjects and skills. I think this allow me to become a more well-rounded individual.
92	Dec 9, 2009 8:25 PM	I'm a movie buff, I like spending time in a theater with my Mrs. watching a new release, be it a poorly made movie or the best i've ever seen. Its a hobby for me. I chose this class because the title alone struck my curiosity on where the movie theatre started, how far the motion picture industry has come and the technology behind it. I think its fascinating.
93	Dec 9, 2009 8:59 PM	General understanding of ideas and topics I am not familiar with. Also reviewing ideas and topics I am familiar with.

94	Dec 9, 2009 9:12 PM	computerized business or science would help students for career in future, so on-line is the best , excep ESL should be interactive practice with standard accent for minorities.
95	Dec 9, 2009 10:34 PM	I hope to take care of a substantial portion of my basic education requirements for my BA.
96	Dec 9, 2009 10:35 PM	Learned how write more effective
97	Dec 9, 2009 11:02 PM	AA requirements
98	Dec 10, 2009 1:03 AM	Be able to transfer to a nursing school
99	Dec 10, 2009 1:35 AM	I want to learn something I can apply to everyday living.
100	Dec 10, 2009 1:40 AM	I want to complete my Associate's degree, to enhance my military career value.
101	Dec 10, 2009 2:33 AM	Recieve AA.
102	Dec 10, 2009 2:45 AM	I hope to complete EL 099 and Accounting 100 classes in spring to fulfill my A.A degree and Administrative Assistance major.
103	Dec 10, 2009 5:28 AM	I just want to learn.
104	Dec 10, 2009 2:41 PM	I would like to earn my AA in Art
105	Dec 10, 2009 8:35 PM	Hoping to learn a new skill or something applicable to my own field. Hoping to have the "dull" topics covered in an interesting way.
106	Dec 11, 2009 1:04 AM	get my AA degree and higher, also my Gerontolgy certificate
107	Dec 11, 2009 1:29 AM	I learned that I need to constantly update my basic skills in language and technology.
108	Dec 11, 2009 2:57 AM	Just taking English 100. Need to transfer to a 4 year university.
109	Dec 11, 2009 3:16 AM	na
110	Dec 11, 2009 3:17 AM	English, Math, Chemistry
111	Dec 11, 2009 3:17 AM	In what way to deal with people.
112	Dec 11, 2009 3:23 AM	english
113	Dec 11, 2009 3:24 AM	I have taken courses at Coastline in the past, and it has been always positive and enjoyable. However, since with this English 100, I've learned a great detail about the course. Mrs. Fry has been the greatest Instructor I have ever met. She's made her students work so hard, but I have enjoyed learning alot from her. She has the greatest attitude, professional demeanor, and her vivid mind really are amazing. She's the first teacher that have made me enjoyed so much learning.
114	Dec 11, 2009 3:24 AM	I would like to learn the practical lessons that I can apply to the workplace.
115	Dec 11, 2009 3:24 AM	I just want to transfer to UC Fullerton.
116	Dec 11, 2009 3:24 AM	I want to complete my AA degree which I started while I was on active duty in the Navy
117	Dec 11, 2009 3:26 AM	To earn my AA in business and prepare for university level work.

164	Dec 23, 2009 6:17 PM	Working towards my AA.
165	Dec 27, 2009 5:06 PM	What I would like to learn or accomplish from my MilEng099 is to become a stronger, more fluent and confident writer.

Comment Summary

166	Dec 30, 2009 5:59 PM	I hope to increase my knowledge on each subject I take.
167	Jan 5, 2010 8:50 AM	Some day soon, I want to figure out what I will be when I grow UP. (I keep changing my mind) Having to reach deep inside myself for my own moral values has given me the opportunity to better understand why some members of society do things that prior to this class, I could not comprehend. Because our state's population is so ethnically diverse, continued humanities studies can be further enlightening and help me attain harmony in which ever employment endeavor I seek.
168	Jan 8, 2010 8:08 PM	I would like to get my A.A. degree
169	Jan 20, 2010 7:00 AM	I want to do have the high level of learning offered by coastline and receive me A.A degree in Aplied Marine Engineering
170	Feb 14, 2010 8:03 PM	increase math,computer and English skills for my current employment and to eventually transfer back to a 4 year college.
171	Apr 20, 2010 5:54 PM	I would like to accomplish my AA degree and Transfer out.

Comment Summary

21	Dec 2, 2009 6:38 PM	campus's.
22	Dec 2, 2009 6:39 PM	In Speech 100 it was most rewarding to realize that the things I was learning would help me in my relationships outside of the classroom. It was nice to study something that I was actually interested in and could easily apply to my everyday life.
23	Dec 2, 2009 6:40 PM	This class; Interpersonal Communications with Professor Desmond. The material covered has been extremely beneficial for establishing and maintaining interpersonal relationships. Specially in a marriage.
24	Dec 2, 2009 6:40 PM	The teachers seem to take the time to help you with any problems you have and they answer your questions as best as they can, and when test taking time rolls around, they go over what will be on the test which is very helpful.
25	Dec 2, 2009 6:41 PM	I have enjoyed the positive interaction with the majority of the instructors.
26	Dec 2, 2009 6:41 PM	This is the only class that I have taken in the Humanities program, and I really enjoy it so far.
27	Dec 2, 2009 6:43 PM	I think that it was a very positive experience because this year was my first year of college so I didn't know what to expect but know that I have an idea of what college is like I am very happy that I choose come to Coastline.
28	Dec 2, 2009 6:45 PM	The SecondLife Pilot Program in My communications class
29	Dec 2, 2009 6:46 PM	The most positive experience is having Miss.Debbie as a professor.She is a great person,very professional and cares about her students sucess.
30	Dec 2, 2009 6:47 PM	I learn a lot from English 97 of Ms.Katherine and Speech 100 of Ms.Debbie. Things that seemed to be simple and easy to be underestimated before become clear, important and helpful now.
31	Dec 2, 2009 6:48 PM	Math
32	Dec 2, 2009 6:48 PM	I've learned a lot of knowleges here in Coastline classes. It helped me a lot to prepare to tranfer next 2 years.
33	Dec 2, 2009 6:51 PM	i have learn about how to communicate with someone around me
34	Dec 2, 2009 6:54 PM	The programs are designed so the students can understand the material and relate it back in actual situations.
35	Dec 2, 2009 6:55 PM	I can speak English right now, that is my positive experience.
36	Dec 2, 2009 6:56 PM	I see changes in my relationship with families members, friends, co-workers, faculty staff etc. The Speech class help me to have a better view of life.
37	Dec 3, 2009 2:56 AM	English and Math
38	Dec 3, 2009 2:57 AM	time of class very help for full time working schedule
39	Dec 3, 2009 2:58 AM	not yet
40	Dec 3, 2009 3:01 AM	My favorite part is when I got to read my classmates papers.
41	Dec 3, 2009 3:02 AM	I took English 100 here, and I love it. I have learned a lot from my class and got help from the tutor center.

42	Dec 3, 2009 3:09 AM	Practice! Practice! Practice!
43	Dec 3, 2009 3:16 AM	good teachers
44	Dec 8, 2009 2:48 AM	Passing English
45	Dec 8, 2009 2:51 AM	good
46	Dec 8, 2009 2:51 AM	The English professor is very detailed and clear on her expectation of our performance.
47	Dec 8, 2009 2:51 AM	Marilyn Fry. She is an excellent English teacher
48	Dec 8, 2009 2:54 AM	I have learned a lot in my English 100 class. I am becoming a better writer just by showing up to class and doing my work. Marily Fry is a great teacher and I am becoming a better writer because of this class.
49	Dec 8, 2009 2:55 AM	Dr. pedro gutierrez..FANTASTIC instructor
50	Dec 8, 2009 2:57 AM	Getting an A++ on an exam onetime.
51	Dec 8, 2009 3:09 AM	I loved sharing all those laughs with the class.
52	Dec 8, 2009 3:10 AM	All my teachers respond to emails quickly
53	Dec 8, 2009 3:10 AM	Really love those classes i was taking
54	Dec 8, 2009 3:10 AM	i dont know
55	Dec 8, 2009 3:12 AM	The most positive experience has been the helpfulness from my instructors
56	Dec 8, 2009 3:12 AM	Out of all my classes this one has been the most positive - Speech - Interpersonal Communication.
57	Dec 8, 2009 3:12 AM	I enjoyed the class very much
58	Dec 8, 2009 3:12 AM	to be honest it has been in my speech class. my teacher has helped me out so much, if it wasnt for her and her help i probably would have failed but she didnt give up on me and made me push to be where i am now.
59	Dec 8, 2009 3:13 AM	Learning some simple communication skills that I have already put to use in my everyday interactions with people and I have already noticed the difference that I make with the new information I learned.
60	Dec 8, 2009 3:13 AM	convenient
61	Dec 8, 2009 3:13 AM	I absolutely love my Speech 100 on-campus course. The instructor (Debbie Desmond), is extremely attentive to her students needs, quickly responds to any questions or concerns, and genuinely seems to care how everyone is doing in the class.
62	Dec 8, 2009 3:13 AM	I really enjoy my professor in Speech class. She explain everything so well and I just personally find it interesting in the way that she teaches.
63	Dec 8, 2009 3:13 AM	The chance to take night classes or hybrid helps when you are a full time working employee.
64	Dec 8, 2009 3:13 AM	the teachers. they're very kind, and easy to understand them

65	Dec 8, 2009 3:14 AM	The most positive experience at coastline was returning back to school and picking up where I left off without having to re-test, or hunt for transcripts.
66	Dec 8, 2009 3:14 AM	I have benefitted from both my instructor in my English 99 class and my Speech 100 class. They both made this very easy to understand to someone who has been out of school for many years.
67	Dec 8, 2009 3:16 AM	This is my first semester, I do not have much to say.
68	Dec 8, 2009 3:16 AM	I have learned a great deal in my current Interpersonal Communications class and have enjoyed the instruction given by Professor Desmond.
69	Dec 8, 2009 3:17 AM	I've learned how to react better to situations from what I've learned in my Speech Communications course.
70	Dec 8, 2009 3:17 AM	My most positive experience is that I was able to earn a scholarship for my writing ability. I am very honored to have received it.
71	Dec 8, 2009 6:45 AM	I liked the feedback from the instructor. I like the people that participated in other discussions that had questions or comments, for a distance class. I liked that the instructor had us do an intro, so that we could see where the other students were from. I think in an online class that is something that helps a group have some kind of cohesiveness-even though the distance is there. I liked that some of the students had photos of themselves, even though I never got around to the technical stuff in the system. Almost like a classroom feel. I liked that the instructor has the online tech stuff figured out, so that it wasn't a barrier to learning the subject.
72	Dec 8, 2009 6:11 PM	Instructors are very helpful, more than I expected and more than being in a class itself in my opinion.
73	Dec 8, 2009 6:19 PM	learned very much in my English and French classes.
74	Dec 8, 2009 7:46 PM	The pace is just perfect for someone working full time and going to school. The most positive experience for me is I was able to complete the classes without much stress so I was able to learn more. The assignments are more than reasonable so I felt like I would succeed.
75	Dec 8, 2009 7:51 PM	The internet class was very clear and understandable making it easy and enjoyable to learn and take.
76	Dec 9, 2009 1:19 AM	very accommodating, not difficult to get classes
77	Dec 9, 2009 2:49 AM	Ability to work full time and go to night classes
78	Dec 9, 2009 3:07 AM	The classes I take around my work schedule.
79	Dec 9, 2009 3:12 AM	very convenient time,
80	Dec 9, 2009 3:14 AM	do all assignment that you can get a good grade
81	Dec 9, 2009 3:20 AM	Online classes at Coastline give me the chance to continue my study.
82	Dec 9, 2009 3:26 AM	The extra help that I received from the teacher.
83	Dec 9, 2009 4:46 AM	The program is easy to access and the instruction mode has been wonderful. The instruction is straight forward and learning comes easy.
84	Dec 9, 2009 5:53 AM	Once I got familiarized with the online format, I was able to do the assignments with ease.

85	Dec 9, 2009 7:58 AM	learning to use the website, computer, online schooling
86	Dec 9, 2009 8:14 PM	I enjoy the fact that Coastline offers a non-traditional program to focused around military students.
87	Dec 9, 2009 8:25 PM	I'm Active Duty Navy. Coastline has gone above and beyond as far is the programs it offers Service Members. I'm extremely pleased and have even recommended to new check-ins at my command to enroll with them. The instructors are understanding and easy to work with. My current one for this course was especially helpful because i'm expecting my first child which has been causing some stress and chaos between work and home. Luckily I was offered good advice and an extension if needed, which I don't believe a lot of Professors offer.
88	Dec 9, 2009 8:59 PM	The quick responsiveness of professors. Also the flexibility they offer to active duty military with assignment deadlines.
89	Dec 9, 2009 9:12 PM	DL is very convenient!
90	Dec 9, 2009 10:34 PM	I traded several e-mails with my children's lit professor who was very encouraging of my choice in English degree and with regard to the work I turned in. He even sent additional links with regard to job options within the English field.
91	Dec 9, 2009 10:35 PM	Just sitting down and actually writing something from scratch.
92	Dec 9, 2009 11:02 PM	instructors assistance
93	Dec 10, 2009 12:54 AM	A couple years ago I took an English course through Professor Taylor. I learned a lot in her class and really enjoyed the interaction between her and the different students enrolled in the class. I was able to take away many things to put to use at my job.
94	Dec 10, 2009 1:03 AM	the psychology class
95	Dec 10, 2009 1:35 AM	I have enough time to complete assignments.
96	Dec 10, 2009 1:40 AM	The Humanities class that I'm taking (History and Appreciation of the Cinema) has surprised me. I was not really excited about taking it before it began, I just needed the credit for my degree. I have been very pleasantly surprised by the class. Not only has it proven interesting, but it has provoked me to view (and enjoy) many older movies that I probably never would have selected to watch, had they not been required.
97	Dec 10, 2009 2:33 AM	The friendly teachers and easy to comprehend material.
98	Dec 10, 2009 2:45 AM	As an ESL student, I'm really need to speak and communicate well by English with other Americans. I had taken some ESL conversation classes, but my communication skill is not improve much because I'm really shy to talk at a crowded students. In addition, I sometime have conferences with my little son's teacher, I need to communicate and understand with the teacher.
99	Dec 10, 2009 5:28 AM	My instructor for Mass Communications provided feedback, and my current instructor for Humanities is offering 3 extra credit assignments, which I need to keep a good grade in this class.
100	Dec 10, 2009 2:41 PM	I'm learning a lot of thing that I can use on my daily life.
101	Dec 10, 2009 8:35 PM	I actually learned a lot about the particular subjects. The instructors used excellent approaches to cover the material.
102	Dec 11, 2009 1:04 AM	just starting, have only completed Sociology. Really enjoyed the class and the teacher

Comment Summary

103	Dec 11, 2009 1:29 AM	Professor Arlington and Professor Leighton are fabulous in providing specific detailed feedback.
104	Dec 11, 2009 2:57 AM	Marilyn Fry was great.
105	Dec 11, 2009 3:16 AM	na
106	Dec 11, 2009 3:17 AM	I really appreciate experienced instructors, quality classes (Garden Grove Center and Le-Jao Center), Convenient class schedule, Student services
107	Dec 11, 2009 3:17 AM	I have only taken English 100 and it's meet my satisfactions.
108	Dec 11, 2009 3:23 AM	interesting courses
109	Dec 11, 2009 3:24 AM	Since my last semester at Cypress in Summer 2009 and upon my returning to Coastline, I am certain to see the differences between the two colleges. I must say the staff at Coastline have been very professional and helpful to me. The Counselor and Instructors have also been very knowledgeable and patient to guide me through. Oh, the Le Jao Center is very nice and clean :)
110	Dec 11, 2009 3:24 AM	The teachers in English classes are very devoted, and the lessons are useful.
111	Dec 11, 2009 3:24 AM	Meeting with the staff about concerns.
112	Dec 11, 2009 3:24 AM	I would say the feeling of accomplishment
113	Dec 11, 2009 3:26 AM	Ms Fry is a good teacher and would recommend her for English classes.
114	Dec 11, 2009 3:32 AM	I have learned many interesting things about life and college through lectures.
115	Dec 11, 2009 3:38 AM	I was able to write essay in different formats.
116	Dec 11, 2009 12:23 PM	Ease of ability to take courses.....On Line is the way to go for someone working full time
117	Dec 12, 2009 8:32 PM	Customer service is one of the most positive experiences one could have.
118	Dec 13, 2009 7:23 AM	The professors are wonderful!
119	Dec 13, 2009 3:22 PM	I pleasure very much with the courses I got and getting in Distance Learning.
120	Dec 13, 2009 7:47 PM	I love online. I participate in discussions more than I would in a classroom. I also like the flexibility of online course; being able to organize and complete the class in my own time.
121	Dec 13, 2009 11:07 PM	Utilizing the discussion forum for online classes. It has been an awesome experiece interfacing with students thru the forum
122	Dec 13, 2009 11:28 PM	Being out of school for nearly 20 years, and knowing that I am learning something that with benefit me in hopefully the near future is fulfilling.
123	Dec 14, 2009 9:22 AM	Discussion forum
124	Dec 14, 2009 11:44 PM	The great knowledge I have gained
125	Dec 15, 2009 4:12 AM	I loved the health classes and feel that they have benifited my fairmly
126	Dec 15, 2009 4:56 AM	I have learned to be displined throughout the courses I took to be the most positive experience.

Comment Summary

127	Dec 15, 2009 10:36 AM	obtaining my associates degree with honors
128	Dec 15, 2009 11:54 AM	I have learned how to properly format essays. And how to become a better writer.
129	Dec 15, 2009 1:22 PM	With the difficulties of taking classes online, it's even harder when you are in the military. My professors have been more than accommodating and have really helped me through some rough times.
130	Dec 15, 2009 2:45 PM	The feedback that I receive from the teachers and earning an A.
131	Dec 15, 2009 2:56 PM	all the classes i have taken have been positive. the instructors have been great.
132	Dec 15, 2009 7:38 PM	It is my first time taking online classes and the experience has been great. The class discussion forum is one positive experience, because it offers a live interaction feeling with other classmates. Another positive experience is how quick the instructor responds to inquiries.
133	Dec 15, 2009 9:18 PM	The Military programs are very friendly toward active duty members. It is a positive to continue to take your classes online.
134	Dec 16, 2009 2:10 AM	Being able to communicate with all the class members, especially the ones that are still on active duty. I retired from the army in 94, and I can relate to their active time and trying to get their degree on their off time.
135	Dec 16, 2009 2:35 AM	ART 100 AND BIOLOGY 100 AND 101
136	Dec 16, 2009 3:07 AM	The instructors are very understanding. They work well with military students.
137	Dec 16, 2009 4:00 AM	Online classes are very practical for me.
138	Dec 16, 2009 5:44 AM	just learning period
139	Dec 16, 2009 6:36 AM	The English 145 and Philosophy 120 classes was very well spaced where a student could complete all the readings for the assignments and not feel rushed.
140	Dec 16, 2009 6:47 AM	Work load and spacing of assignment was very good. I did not feel rushed.
141	Dec 16, 2009 12:18 PM	The classes can be accessed anytime and anywhere. You can also do everything on your own at your own pace.
142	Dec 16, 2009 4:16 PM	The truly anytime-anywhere nature of the online courses. Some online schools require daily or weekly interaction on the forum; active duty military students can often be without internet for a week or more. With CCC, I can read the textbooks before the class even starts and then on opening day start knocking out the assignments. Being able to stay two weeks ahead of a class is very important due to the nature of military work.
143	Dec 16, 2009 8:27 PM	the convenience and access
144	Dec 17, 2009 5:06 PM	My most positive experience is actually being able to take online courses and getting to know these professors. They are helpful and insightful. I really enjoy taking courses online due to my busy schedule at home.
145	Dec 18, 2009 3:41 AM	all are good no problems
146	Dec 18, 2009 6:39 AM	The experience. Since I have been out of school for 15 years I have found taking courses on-line different and more interesting than doing classroom instruction and I enjoyed it very much.

147	Dec 18, 2009 2:05 PM	The willingness of professors to work with me on assignments when I am forced to be away from computer or internet
148	Dec 18, 2009 4:01 PM	I specifically like the eight week courses online which allows me to continue my education and work full time.
149	Dec 18, 2009 7:11 PM	none
150	Dec 18, 2009 10:19 PM	It's my pace
151	Dec 19, 2009 8:19 AM	The online classes were very convenient and offered a unique approach to the subject matter, which I preferred to the normal lecture setting for these types of general ed classes
152	Dec 20, 2009 10:13 PM	self gratification
153	Dec 20, 2009 10:16 PM	self gratification
154	Dec 20, 2009 10:39 PM	contact with professors
155	Dec 20, 2009 11:27 PM	The prompt responses from each and every professor. Every element is very user friendly. I know that the professors are very busy and I very much appreciate their efforts.
156	Dec 21, 2009 12:38 AM	its a new experience i have enjoyed the interaction with other students in my class.
157	Dec 21, 2009 2:34 AM	my first class was very new to me. i stayed focus and recieved a B at the conclusion of the class.
158	Dec 21, 2009 4:02 AM	Primarily just getting back into learning again as a whole.
159	Dec 21, 2009 10:17 PM	It has been a life changing experece for myself. I have over come and accomplished many things. I just hope to find a B.A. program that is as supportive as this college is.
160	Dec 23, 2009 6:17 PM	Very friendly oriented and very understanding.
161	Dec 27, 2009 5:06 PM	The most positive experience that I have encountered at Coastline throughout my classes has been the teachers understanding of active duty military dependence, since we have many rolls, such as mother, wife, homemaker, and among many others on top of being an active student at Coastline.
162	Dec 30, 2009 5:59 PM	Professors are willing to work with students.
163	Jan 5, 2010 8:50 AM	Dr. Robert Covert is without a doubt, the best instructor I have had in my many years of schooling. He takes extra time to make sure he communicates even the tiniest bit of information to all of his students. Because there are no face-to-face meetings with instructors, nor peer interaction with classmates, communication is so essential in on-line classes. By contrast with Dr. Covert, another instructor had a typo on material for an assignment. That typo created a non-existent word that sent me on a wild-goose chase. When I contacted the instructor to clarify the material. I did receive an acknowledgement that an error existed, however the information was not shared with the remainder of the class. Dr. Covert communicated cross-class. If there was any possibility that a message board entry was missed, he sent e-mail after e-mail to us all. If somebody contacted him personally, his answer was shared with ALL. I wish every instructor was as forthright with information as this man. He's a jewel in my crowning success.
164	Jan 5, 2010 9:14 AM	The only positive experience was finally finishing them. Too many problems with the system used to deliver English 01 though 09. If an instructor was paid for services even $.01 was an overpayment.
		I've been in the class of English 100, College 105. They are very essential for a student who start his or 166	Jan 14, 2010 12:34 AM	The material was very easy to understand, but at times the way in which the material was to be written was not clear to the full extent. There were one too many examples that did not correlate to eachother making some assignments difficult to understand.

167	Jan 20, 2010 7:00 AM	quick, correct help from instuctor
168	Feb 14, 2010 8:03 PM	The instructors have been so helpful, one of the best instructors is Keven Rewers.
169	Apr 20, 2010 5:54 PM	The Instructors are very helpful and they walk with you all the way.

53	Dec 8, 2009 3:13 AM	Yes, more science transfer classes, more classes available for Public Speaking, and more Philosophy-logic classes that are not distant learning.
54	Dec 8, 2009 3:13 AM	I'm not sure -- it would be nice to have an accelerated program for people who are intending to become educators. I don't know if one is offered now or not, but I was not informed of one during any of my meetings with my education plan advisor.
55	Dec 8, 2009 3:13 AM	No thank you.
56	Dec 8, 2009 3:13 AM	Yes, I would like to see the Garden Grove center offer more electives, such as fitness, languages and culinary arts.
57	Dec 8, 2009 3:13 AM	nursing program
58	Dec 8, 2009 3:14 AM	YES. I would love it if coastline would offer an HR course.
59	Dec 8, 2009 3:14 AM	not that I can think of.
60	Dec 8, 2009 3:16 AM	Not at this time.
61	Dec 8, 2009 3:16 AM	Criminal Justice.
62	Dec 8, 2009 3:17 AM	Interior Design classes would be nice.
63	Dec 8, 2009 3:17 AM	I would like to see the Political Science/Pre-law degree program expanded.
64	Dec 8, 2009 6:45 AM	I have one or two more classes to take before I have to go to University level. Any health classes would be great. Any online health classes, but most probably need hands on.
65	Dec 8, 2009 6:11 PM	Coastline offers a variety of programs very satisfied
66	Dec 8, 2009 7:46 PM	A 3 unit Spanish class that would satisfy credit transfer to a university.
67	Dec 8, 2009 7:51 PM	Don't know.
68	Dec 9, 2009 1:19 AM	No
69	Dec 9, 2009 2:49 AM	More science classes

74	Dec 9, 2009 8:14 PM	Human Resource Management Program
75	Dec 9, 2009 8:25 PM	More basic math courses. I'm not the smartest with Math. I placed into Math 005 and was left for a year to basically "figure it out" on my own. Coastline should offer some basic math for individuals like me. Now i'll have to wait to graduate in the fall of 2010 instead of this spring.

Comment Summary

76	Dec 9, 2009 8:59 PM	California history.
77	Dec 9, 2009 9:12 PM	green is coming , why Coastline does'nt have it yet?
78	Dec 9, 2009 10:34 PM	I so thoroughly enjoyed my History of Iraq class that I wished there were history classes for other parts of the world, such as China or South Africa. Also, through the military spouse program there isn't an English or Liberal Arts AA. As a substitute, I did the general education AA which I believe is basically a transfer program.
79	Dec 9, 2009 10:35 PM	Information Systems
80	Dec 9, 2009 11:02 PM	possible
81	Dec 10, 2009 12:54 AM	I would like to learn the Microsoft Publisher program if you offered a course on that. I haven't seen anything in your class schedules for that program.
82	Dec 10, 2009 1:03 AM	Nursing
83	Dec 10, 2009 1:35 AM	No
84	Dec 10, 2009 2:33 AM	No.
85	Dec 10, 2009 2:45 AM	1-I hope to take a conversation class that has a teacher and a small group, so I can easily ask the teacher for helping me how to use the right words in conversation with others. 2-I hope an Accounting tutor will be in Le-Jao success student or Garden Grove center to help students.
86	Dec 10, 2009 4:55 AM	Consruction Management BA
87	Dec 10, 2009 5:28 AM	Not at this time.
88	Dec 10, 2009 7:52 AM	business
89	Dec 10, 2009 2:41 PM	I can't think of any right now,
90	Dec 11, 2009 1:29 AM	Many - all online (due to work)
91	Dec 11, 2009 2:57 AM	Doesn't really apply to me.
92	Dec 11, 2009 3:16 AM	Chemistry 180, Physics 180, Biology 181 and higher level courses
93	Dec 11, 2009 3:17 AM	Organic chemistry, Genetic, Biochemistry
94	Dec 11, 2009 3:17 AM	Psychology, Sociology, Film
95	Dec 11, 2009 3:23 AM	don,t know
96	Dec 11, 2009 3:24 AM	Why Coastline discontinued offering AA in Human Services. Although I will continue to finish my HS major, I wish I don't have to go back to Cypress.
97	Dec 11, 2009 3:24 AM	A.A Degree of International Trade or Logistics
98	Dec 11, 2009 3:24 AM	No.
99	Dec 11, 2009 3:26 AM	I think Coastline should offer all the necessary business classes, and I would like to see a Latin American art classes. Also I think there should more tv classes offered.

100	Dec 11, 2009 3:32 AM	No, there aren't.
101	Dec 11, 2009 3:38 AM	none at the moment
102	Dec 11, 2009 12:23 PM	Something Comprable to Health Science program talored for Navy IDC's as established at George Washington University
103	Dec 12, 2009 8:32 PM	None.
104	Dec 13, 2009 7:23 AM	I think you have a wide range.
105	Dec 13, 2009 3:22 PM	Yes.
106	Dec 13, 2009 7:47 PM	Guess it would be kind of tough to take a Speech class online, huh? (ha, ha) So far, so good. Haven't had a need for other classes yet.
107	Dec 13, 2009 11:07 PM	maybe a wider variety of electives
108	Dec 13, 2009 11:28 PM	None that I can think of. Or, any additional courses that lead to a teaching degree.
109	Dec 14, 2009 9:22 AM	Can't think of anything
110	Dec 14, 2009 11:44 PM	Creative writing classes
111	Dec 15, 2009 4:12 AM	Teaching degree
112	Dec 15, 2009 4:56 AM	None at this thime.
113	Dec 15, 2009 10:36 AM	medical/nursing
114	Dec 15, 2009 1:22 PM	Can't think of any off hand.
115	Dec 15, 2009 2:45 PM	I would like to see some programs available that are geared more for teaching.
116	Dec 15, 2009 2:56 PM	none that i can think of.
117	Dec 15, 2009 7:38 PM	Definately AA in Finance for military spouses! I took AA in Business Adm because it is the closest program to finance, but my preference is having an AA in Finance.
118	Dec 15, 2009 9:18 PM	I would hope Costline could offer more foriegn language.
119	Dec 16, 2009 2:10 AM	I have not looked at getting a P.E. credential for the High School level yet. Do you offer anything in this field?
120	Dec 16, 2009 2:35 AM	YES, ACCOUNTING 102
121	Dec 16, 2009 3:07 AM	Maybe Bachelor degree programs.
122	Dec 16, 2009 5:44 AM	physical therapy
123	Dec 16, 2009 6:36 AM	On line Art and Music classes.
124	Dec 16, 2009 6:47 AM	Online art and music classes.
		Yes I would like Coastline to offer additional mathematics classes for military students. I plan on

135	Dec 20, 2009 10:16 PM	misc science classes
136	Dec 20, 2009 11:27 PM	No.
137	Dec 21, 2009 12:38 AM	dont know
138	Dec 21, 2009 2:34 AM	None
139	Dec 21, 2009 4:02 AM	Perhaps some sort of drama classes, although; I don't really know how that would translate online.
140	Dec 21, 2009 10:17 PM	Yes. B.A. programs for military spouses.
141	Dec 23, 2009 6:17 PM	Not that I can of.
142	Dec 27, 2009 5:06 PM	I would like to see Coastline broaden their course or degree program to include other math and science fields, and possibly teaching, and to include AS/BS degrees for military dependence.
143	Dec 30, 2009 5:59 PM	Computer certification courses
144	Jan 5, 2010 8:50 AM	I wish there was a certificate or degree in Spanish translation. I would be the first enrollee. Universities offer this type of class but I certainly cannot afford their prices. I wish Coastline had more Spanish classes, such as those for legal and medical terms. That would be great for me. There is certainly a demand for this in California.
145	Jan 5, 2010 9:14 AM	Spanish translation certificate or degree especially Spanish legal and medical terms. High interest in this, high demand in our State.
146	Jan 8, 2010 8:08 PM	No
147	Jan 20, 2010 7:00 AM	every thing i need is already offered
148	Feb 14, 2010 8:03 PM	More Accounting and online math courses.

149	Apr 20, 2010 5:54 PM	Maybe become a law school =)

Comment Summary

50	Dec 8, 2009 3:13 AM	No, my class was great and the instructor was amazing. I am very please to have taken this class at Coastline, and my expectations have been fulfilled and more.
51	Dec 8, 2009 3:13 AM	on line class offers at Coastline is the best. Technicals help desk at CCC is terrible. The site is not user friendly to sign on and register your class. the search key button for classes are useless.
52	Dec 8, 2009 3:13 AM	Rework the online and distance learning programs, with some oversight from administration regarding the instructors. My other distance learning course (in the math department) is also extremely unsatisfactory - and I general greatly enjoy online courses. So far, my on-campus experience has been working great though.
53	Dec 8, 2009 3:13 AM	Overall I really enjoy this program.

56	Dec 8, 2009 3:14 AM	no. This department is great.
57	Dec 8, 2009 3:14 AM	The only experience that I had was understanding one of my instructors, they had a very heavy accent and I was working hard to translate as well as learn the course.
58	Dec 8, 2009 3:16 AM	None.
59	Dec 8, 2009 3:16 AM	None.
60	Dec 8, 2009 3:17 AM	This program has been great. I really like my teacher in this course.
61	Dec 8, 2009 3:17 AM	I think a virtual program would be very beneficial so that students can interact more. They would also be able to have a study group.
62	Dec 8, 2009 6:45 AM	Instructor was willing to listen to suggestions and comments throughout semester. Can't really think of anything major off hand now.
63	Dec 8, 2009 6:19 PM	the online classes should be regulated and audited by the Dean or I.T. Department. Some professors are concise and organized, yet I've dropped other courses because the professor had the online format too cluttered and jumbled. Specifically, the EDUC 180, early childhood education "Families, Schools, and Communities" class offered at Coastline is very hard to follow compared to other online courses that I have completed.
64	Dec 8, 2009 7:51 PM	Not at this time.

68	Dec 9, 2009 3:26 AM	No.
69	Dec 9, 2009 4:46 AM	Very good program. I like the courses that are all online...it has made it possible for me to come within only 3 more classes of gaining a BS degree!
		I missed out on two extra credit assignments early on in the beginning of the semester because I was

103	Dec 15, 2009 7:38 PM	No, I would not change a thing, the online program works perfectly!
104	Dec 16, 2009 2:10 AM	I was very pleased at the courses and the professionalism of the professors. My computer needed to get replaced when it acted up, and I received very good courteous assistance from the military counselors, the staff, faculty and your technical staff.

109	Dec 16, 2009 4:16 PM	I don't know if this is financially feasible, but the instructors seem too busy to interact with online students. I imagine the same instructors teach traditional classes as well, and I understand that a lesser student to teacher ratio quickly equals higher tuition. My only gripe with anything from this school is failures by instructors to satisfactorily answer a question or to check the program to ensure students grades are correct. There have been technical errors that gave me a lower grade than I earned and the instructor verified it and said it'd get corrected, it didn't.

123	Dec 23, 2009 6:17 PM	Not at this time. Very satisfied with my first course through Coastline.
124	Jan 5, 2010 8:50 AM	One thing I have encountered in all my on-line classes: instructors re-use their materials but are not consistent with date changing from semester to semester. Sometimes this leads to a lot of head-scratching.... Luckily it isn't life-threatening and caring instructors communicate date corrections to all class members.
125	Jan 5, 2010 9:14 AM	Yes, stop using the system currently in use for English 01 through 09. Childish games on some sections, total system failure resulting in loss of hours and hours of my time and effort. I had to re-do each and every one of these classes. Two of them I had to re-do more than once. The end user agreement link sends us to neverland...

Executive Summary

- The Coastline Humanities Program is robust and healthy.
- FTES increased from fall 2004 218.14 to fall 2009 306.37.
- Humanities courses are taught in the Military Program, Early College High School, and Credits for College Program.
- In 5 years, we have increased variety in scheduled classes and expanded distance learning classes, including development of correspondence courses to serve students who do not have access to the Internet.

- Overall, students are satisfied with all aspects of the Humanities Program.
- There are three areas where dissatisfaction has been expressed
 1. Slow response time of instructors and the DL Department
 2. Inadequate responsiveness on the part of instructors
 3. Technical difficulties associated with accessing Coastline servers and using online programs.

Student Learning Outcomes

1. The student will be able to write well-organized, well-developed expository essays in a variety of rhetorical modes, using Standard English, with a clear thesis statement and supporting topic sentences and supporting details.
2. The student will be able to search for and find reliable, unbiased sources and to use these sources in research papers using correct MLA documentation.
3. The student will be able to analyze a given literary work and explain its relevance to the time period and genre in which it was written as well as the relationship between the events in an author's life, time, and culture to the development of his or her writing.
4. The student will be able to evaluate a literary work in terms of style and descriptive technique, language, tone, mood, and literary conventions, such as symbolism, imagery, irony, and poetic devices, such as meter and rhyme pattern.

Progress on Goals of Spring 2005

1. All course outlines in the program have been revised as of April 2010.
2. English 144, English 145, Humanities 100, Philosophy 100 are identified in the 2009–2010 catalog as meeting the A.A. Degree requirement for “Global and Multicultural Studies.”
3. Many Humanities faculty, particularly English faculty, have assignments for students that require use of the Coastline Virtual Library.
4. All departments in the Humanities Program have greatly expanded their offerings in online courses.
5. Within the past five years, the pay rate for online English instructors teaching military students has greatly improved.
6. Union negotiations in 2006–2007 were successful in lowering the size of English composition classes from 38 to 30.
7. Creation of web pages for departments within the Humanities Program is included in our new 5 year goal plan.
8. Although we were not able to create a joint lab for basic skills classes and ESL practice, we have established a reading program at Le-Jao Center.
9. A full-time Philosophy instructor is not needed at this time.

Progress on Steering Committee Recommendations

1. We have begun to restore writing classes and have begun with English 133, Fiction Writing, which has been taught every semester and in the Military Program. We plan to restore additional writing classes in the next two years.
2. We have developed an online hybrid speech course that will be taught to Air Force personnel only.
3. All Humanities Program course outlines now include robust SLOs; almost all faculty in the program have evaluated at least one SLO.
4. Courses other than Speech have not been identified as appropriately symbiotic with the library class.
5. Workshops are currently being offered on a variety of basic skills subjects at the Le-Jao Center in Westminster.
6. We have identified humanities courses that fulfill “Global and Multicultural Studies” requirements.
7. We have established a reading program and lab at the Le-Jao Center.
8. Two 100-level English and three basic skills courses have been developed as correspondence course.

Staffing Recommendations

- ★ 3 full-time faculty in the Humanities Program intend to retire within two years.
 - The Humanities Program strongly encourages replacement of these members as they retire to sustain program quality.
- ★ The Humanities faculty strongly recommend the hiring of a full-time Student Success Coordinator to develop and implement:
 - Tutoring support
 - Supplementary instruction
 - Basic Skills resources

8. Five-year Goals & Recommendations

1. By fall 2010, hire a full-time Student Success Coordinator.
2. By fall 2011, hire a full-time English instructor.
3. By fall 2012, hire a full-time Communication Studies/Mass Communications instructor.
4. Develop and implement an online tutoring service for English Composition students.
5. Expand independent study offerings for students who have no access to the Internet.
6. Expand literature offerings by 5 courses.
7. Expand writing courses to include poetry and screenwriting.
8. Establish a reading test as part of the English Placement Test and expand the reading program.
9. Encourage faculty to use the Progress Notes feature in Seaport for continuous course improvement.
10. Create an English Department web site.
11. Create a Philosophy Department web site.
12. Create a Speech Department web site.

Program Review 2009-10
Validation Report

Humanities Program

1. Has the program adequately responded to the elements identified in the outline for instructional or student services programs (see appropriate checklist)?

Yes No

If no, note which topics were either omitted or not addressed clearly or substantially enough:

2. List the most important things (issues, trends, concerns, etc.) that are apparent from this report:

- A. Enrollments have grown by 43% since Fall 2004.
- B. The program has expanded in both number and variety of courses and serves traditional and specialized populations and programs at the college.
- C. The Student Success Center and related support services have been functioning with part-time faculty since the retirement of the SSC Coordinator in July 2009; a new full-time faculty member is very much needed to coordinate and champion student success initiatives.
- D. Since the last review in 2004-05, the program has added one full-time English instructor but is also facing the planned retirement of the long-time Humanities Department Chair by the end of 2010.

3. Does the data substantiate the conclusions and recommendations made?

Yes No

If no, note the areas and manner in which data does not match conclusions or recommendations?

4. List any realistic suggestions the Steering Committee may have for the program based on information in the self-study.

- A. Develop and implement a plan for assessing program-level student learning outcomes for the English major and for assessing the core degree-level outcome in communication and interpersonal skills for all students graduating with an A.A. degree.
- B. Establish and implement a process for annual or semi-annual department-wide review and dialog of assessed student learning outcomes and identification of strategies for improving future outcomes.

- C. Make hiring of a Student Success Coordinator the top priority on the program's wish list of full-time faculty positions.
 - D. Develop strategies for integrating basic skills instruction into vocational and general education courses in a seamless manner that will support students and faculty.
 - E. Continue to explore options for creating degree and transfer-applicable online speech courses and correspondence-based writing courses, including English 100. This may require designing prototype lessons and supporting course development and articulation with research about how these delivery modalities and learning strategies support student success in these particular subjects.
 - F. Work with ISD to provide support and training to Humanities Program faculty as they develop hybrid and distance learning courses.
5. List program accomplishments and aspects for which the program should be commended.
- A. The Humanities Program faculty members in all disciplines are to be commended for their work in developing and delivering courses that generate strong enrollments and garner high marks from students from students for quality and relevance.
 - B. Commendations to Marilyn Fry and Ken Leighton for leading the program's curriculum review and development activities and for moving the department forward in the identification, mapping, and assessment of student learning outcomes.
 - C. Kudos to the department for their cooperation and involvement with college programs that serve specific student populations and for their work with colleagues within the District on common course numbering.
 - D. Special recognition is offered to the English Department for their success for making the English 099 Credit by Exam option available to incarcerated students.
